$3,000,000 Aid Measure Given Senate Approval

Assembly Expected to Pass Much Different Bill

VOTE IS 20 TO 9
Provides New Gift Surtax and Higher
Estate Levies

Madison—(U)—The state senate passed a relief bill today but in a shape much different from the companion measure it probably will receive from the assembly.

The senate bill, approved 20 to 9, appropriates $3,000,000 — which is $2,000,000 less than the amount already asked by the house.

The opposing votes all were cast by Progressives who objected to the amendment of the Wisconsin County Boards association giving each county, regardless of need, a 10 per cent reimbursement of its relief expenditures. Administration spokesmen claimed Governor La Follette vetoed the amended senate measure because it wrecked his plans of extending relief only on an emergency basis.

The $3,000,000 would be obtained by a 30 per cent surtax on gifts and an increase from 25 to 30 per cent in the surtax on inheritances up to $141.

Assembly Bill
The assembly, meanwhile, worked on its own bill, in which the surtaxes have been boosted to 50 per cent to raise a total of $5,000,000.

The higher tax rate was proposed by Speaker Paul Alfonsi (P) of Pence and had the support of a group of Farmer-Labor Progressive Federationists. Alfonsi's amendment was adopted 50 to 43.

The assembly bill also allows each county a 10 per cent share of the appropriations but the speaker claimed the extra $2,000,000 will take care of this allotment.

Chain store taxation for relief revenue was eliminated from consideration in the assembly when the house by a vote of 53 to 37 sustained a ruling of Assemblyman Charles B. Perry (R), Wauwatosa, temporary chairman, that a chain store tax measure, introduced by 22 house members, was not germane to the governor's special session call or to the relief bill.

Kills Amendment
The assembly also killed, 65 to 29, the amendment by Alfonsi and Assemblyman Frank Graess (R), Sturgeon Bay, asking allotment of $250,000 to 27 counties to reimburse them for relief expenditures prior to July 1, 1937.

About 200 persons, carrying banners asking re-enactment of trade practice codes which expired July 1, filed into the assembly galleries shortly before noon. A committee consisting of Charles N. Gray and Ed Woods, barber's representatives, Clem Renner of the Window Cleaners' union, and A. L. Blechinger of the Shoe Builders, all of Milwaukee, will ask the governor this afternoon to extend his call to provide for code legislation.

Cities represented by the petitioners included Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Sheboygan, Green Bay and Madison.

Safety Bills
Assembly Progressives moved today to amend Republican-sponsored highway safety bills by raising the appropriation back to the $750,000 per cent authorized by La Follette and the highway department.

Assemblyman Henry Berquist (P) Rhinelander, introduced a substitute amendment to the Thomson-Peterson bill during a joint legislative hearing late yesterday.

The substitute appropriates $500,000 now and $750,000 annually hereafter from highway funds for a safety education program, employment of 100 state highway police, and marking of roads. These sums are the same as those in the highway "rider" stricken by both houses from the administration relief bill.

Although Berquist's measure would limit the salaries of the new officers to $175 a month, except for their director, and place them under their director, it would leave all other details, including allotment of the funds to the highway department as the administration bill did.

Real Royal Purple

Royal purple is so called because in ancient times purple dye, made from a small crustacean, was so scarce and expensive that only those with the wealth of kings could afford to wear garments made of it. A pound of wool dyed purple at one time was worth $200. Post-Crescent Want Ads are not expensive, but they are royal result-getters, worth many times what they cost when results are secured like this:

Avert League Move in Civil War in Spain

France and Britain Want Mussolini to Withdraw Troops First

JAPAN CONDEMNED

League Assembly Unanimous in Stand Against Aerial Attacks

Geneva—(U)—France and Britain joined hands today to forestall League of Nations action in the Spanish civil war, inferring they wished first to get Premier Mussolini to agree to withdraw Italian volunteers from the Spanish insurgent army.

Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos of France announced this move before the league committee on political questions which is considering Spain's appeal against what it charges is "fascist invasion."

Referring to the proposed conversations by France, Britain and Italy, on the question of volunteers, Delbos said, "the moment has come when a clear declaration must be made, followed by effective action."

The French government, he said, sees good reason to make further effort "to insure that the undertaking (of non-intervention) is observed by all and to preserve the political independence and territorial integrity of Spain."

"The withdrawal of foreign combatants from Spain is of peculiar urgency. If this effort should fail, the whole situation when inevitably must be examined anew."

Safeguard Peace
He declared the non-intervention agreement, despite acknowledged violations, had at least succeeded in "safeguarding European peace in the face of a thousand threats."

The subcommittee to prepare and draft the resolution on Spain's appeal to the league against alleged Italian and German aggression voted today to act at the close of today's debate on the Spanish crisis.

Just before adjournment, Alvarez del Vayo, government spokesman, earnestly argued against the Franco-British plan to postpone action until after the tripartite talks with Mussolini.

"My country has made terrific sacrifices and has been attacked by aircraft—German aircraft," he said.

Great Britain's attitude, paralleling France's, was expressed by Walter E. Elliott, British representative.

The league assembly condemned Japanese aerial bombardment of China cities today by a moment of dramatic, solemn silence.

There was no formal vote. The Aga Khan, delegate from India and newly-elected assembly president, interpreted as a vote of approval the silence that followed presentation of the Sino-Japanese advisory committee's resolution of condemnation.

The assembly acted swiftly on the resolution. It had been adopted yesterday by the league advisory group on which the United States is represented in a consultative capacity.

A letter accompanying the text of the measure, from Foreign Minister Delbos, said:

Drunk Driver Fined $50, Costs Anton Werner, Route 2, Dale, Also Must Serve 10 Days

Pleading guilty of drunken driving when he appeared in municipal court yesterday afternoon, Anton Werner, route 2, Dale, was fined $50 and costs and 10 days in the Outagamie county detention camp by Judge Thomas H. Ryan. He must serve an additional 60 days if the fine is not paid.

Werner also pleaded guilty of driving an automobile without a license and was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the detention camp.

He was arrested by county police who reported he was driving in an erratic manner on Highway 41 in the town of Greenville Saturday night.

Slaying Suspect Tries To Kill Self in Jail

Los Angeles—(U)—John R. Walker, 26-year-old today held for the slaying of his common-law wife, was recovering in a padded cell today after chewing his wrists in an attempt at suicide.

Detective D. R. Patton said Walker confessed last night to killing Virginia Lee Darrow, 34. When police arrived at his cell later to take a formal statement they found him unconscious and bleeding.

Patton said Walker apparently had opened an artery with his teeth, then dived headlong from his bunk to the steel floor. Aside from loss of blood, however, he suffered only minor injuries.

The strange death attempt came a few hours after an autopsy showed that Miss Darrow was killed by blows on the head with a blunt instrument in a Venice apartment late Thursday night.

CCC Enrollees Back At Work After They Go on 'Food Strike'

Wisconsin Rapids—(U)—Captain Albert C. Wolfe of CCC Camp Petenwell said today all of the 60 CCC enrollees detailed from his camp to the state forestry nursery near here were back at work today after a "food strike" yesterday afternoon.

Captain Wolfe labelled the situation as a "misunderstanding" between the base camp and the mess chef at the nursery. He said because more boys than had been anticipated arrived at the nursery to work, there was a shortage of rations yesterday.

Given only green beans and pea soup, the boys quit work, Captain Wolfe said, but went back willingly today with the arrival of a plentiful supply of food from Camp Petenwell.

4 Severely Hurt In Strike Clash

Fight Results as A. F. of L. Men Force Way Through Rival Faction

Port Huron, Mich.—(U)—At least four men suffered severe injuries and scores were pummeled and bruised when American Federation of Labor members forced their way through a picket line of opposition unionists today at the Mueller Brass Co. plant.

Kenneth Hunt, 21, was taken to Port Huron General hospital with internal injuries. He was knocked down and kicked when 400 A.F.L. members and about 100 Committee for Industrial Organization pickets fought with fists and clubs at the main gate.

Others injured: James Atkinson, 49, fractured ribs; Guy Finch, 49, head injuries; John Albert, 37, fractured ribs and possible internal injuries. These three were treated at the plant hospital.

The A.F.L. workers returned to their jobs on the day shift after running the picket line and production, interrupted last night, was resumed.

The CIO unionists called a meeting for noon today after failing to close the plant this morning.

Waukegan, Wis.—(U)—Police said yesterday they had recovered more than $100 worth of overcoats, suits and shoes, and 100 pairs of socks, stored by ten or twelve men living at Resthaven, veterans' home here. Proceeds of the sales, police said, were used for liquor.

Peace Is Aim of Germany and Italy, Hitler and Mussolini Say in Speeches

Berlin—(U)—Premier Mussolini of Italy and Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany told 600,000 Germans and a world wide radio audience tonight, will be the issue from Nazi-fascist collaboration.

Der Fuehrer spoke first and briefly at the gala festival in Mayfield and Olympic stadium, declaring that peace for Germany and Italy is the meaning of the mammoth Nazi-fascist demonstration of the last four days.

Hitler, speaking in the German of his hour, followed.

"The whole world is tensely asking," Mussolini said, "what will be the result of the Berlin meeting. 'Peace or war?' both of us, der fuehrer and myself, can answer with a loud voice: 'Peace!'"

Hitler's voice was hoarse, his German perfect but the pronunciation showed a certain stress.

Mussolini spoke twice as long as Hitler, who said that a few words in preparing the carefully prepared address of his guest.

Hitler bunched, denounced the "democratic, Marxist, internationalist" (communists), while a duke

Silence Dims Hope for Life In Abduction

Bellboy's Story Provides Only Major Clue in Ross Kidnaping

SUSPECT IS SOUGHT

Victim's Record Reveals No Scandal or Financial Difficulties

Chicago—(U)—A hotel bellboy's meager description of a mysterious man in a gray cap offered the only promising clue today to the kidnapers of wealthy and aged Charles S. Ross.

The man talked to Ross in a Sycamore, Ill., hotel a few hours before the 72-year-old retired greeting card manufacturer was abducted on a highway a few miles west of Chicago Saturday night.

No demand for ransom had been received by the victim's distraught wife. The kidnapers' silence engendered a belief that Ross might have died from shock. He had suffered from heart disease.

The conversation between Ross and the man wearing a gray cap occurred at the Fargo hotel where the former had dined with his longtime secretary, Miss Florence Freihage, 44.

Asked About Ross
Cecil Vandemere, 19-year-old bellboy, said the man approached him in the lobby and pointing at Ross asked:

"Do you know who that is? He looks like a man I used to know."

Vandemere replied he did not know the elderly man. Later he told police he was unable to tell whether Ross and the stranger were acquainted.

Captain Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's police, said the man may have been a spotter for the three kidnapers who forced Ross out of his car and carried him off in their car.

"I am convinced that this was a real kidnaping but that it was accomplished by amateurs," Captain Gilbert said, adding his belief that at least five men would have participated if the kidnaping was the work of professionals.

Captain Gilbert said an investigation disclosed the victim's past life was above reproach and free of difficulties nor did he have any known enemies, he said.

Stopped Automobile
Miss Freihage added no new details in the re-telling of her story. She said Ross had noticed a car following them on the 50 mile trip to Chicago and had stopped to let it pass. The pursuing car stopped and a youth about 20 emerged, covered them with a pistol and said:

"This is a snatch. My boss told me to bring you along."

Captain Gilbert said the youth's nervousness stamped him as an amateur. The reference to the "boss" was presumably an attempt to make the kidnaping appear as the plot of a "master mind," he added.

Investigators were to check a possibility that Ross carried a large sum of money for an Australian trip which he was known to have planned.

Mrs. Ross maintained vigil at her luxurious apartment, confident the kidnapers would communicate with her.

Kenosha Union to Vote On CIO Affiliation

Kenosha—(U)—Emil Costello, ex-president of the Simmons Co. Federal Labor union, suspended by the A. F. of L., said the union would vote today on whether it would affiliate with the CIO, of which Costello is state chairman.

Decision to vote was made yesterday at a meeting of the ousted union's executive board, previous to which constables had taken office equipment upon a ruling by Municipal Judge Calvin Stewart. The court issued a restraining order at the request of Joseph A. Padway, Milwaukee, counsel for the state federation of labor.

The union executive board voted last night to surrender $15,000 to the clerk of circuit court, as demanded by Judge E. B. Belden in state court today in an order from the state federation pending reorganization of a Simmons union.

Oil Company Official Trying to Speed Trial

Madison—(U)—Counsel for Bernard L. Majewski of Chicago, vice president of the Deep Rock Oil company, filed a motion in federal court today because he was a witness before the grand jury which indicted 24 oil companies and nearly 60 individuals under the Sherman anti-trust act, he could not be indicted on his own testimony.

His attorneys, in view of the fact no action has been taken on the previous motion, asked for trial now since he must come to Madison as a witness.

Power Projects to Help Smaller Communities, Roosevelt Maintains

Fond du Lac Fire Loss Is Estimated At Over $150,000

Old Amory Block on Main Street Is Destroyed By Flames

Fond du Lac—(U)—Fire destroyed the 81-year-old Amory block on Main street last night with a loss which unofficial estimates placed at more than $150,000.

Stock and fixtures in the Gamble, Kroger and Martha Waters dress stores, occupying the first floor, were ruined.

The Sears Roebuck and the Huber School Supplies stores, situated in neighboring buildings were badly damaged by smoke. The back room of the Huber establishment also suffered from flames.

Narrow Escapes
Fire Chief George Smithers suffered lung congestion as the result of the heavy smoke. Several firemen narrowly escaped injury when the brick walls collapsed. Three dashed to safety a few seconds before the front of the structure toppled into Main street. They had been fighting the flames from a position inside the Gamble store.

Several law firms had offices on the second floor of the building. There also were apartments in that part of the building. On the third floor was Amory hall, which at the time was used as a theater. The building, with its high ceiling, was almost as tall as a modern five-story structure.

The fire was discovered shortly after 7 o'clock p. m. It apparently started in a basement heating plant. The flames gradually crept up through the walls to the roof, breaking through at about 11 o'clock. The blaze roared into the open, dooming the building, and endangering surrounding property situated in the heart of Fond du Lac's business district.

Oskosh was called upon for help. Part of the Oskosh equipment arrived in time to assist in preventing the flames from spreading.

Scores Face U. S. Trial in Kentucky

Accused of Depriving Miners of Civil Rights Under Labor Act

Frankfort, Ky.—(U)—Twenty-three present or former deputy sheriffs, 24 coal mine company executives and 22 companies, all of Harlan county, Ky., today faced arraignment in late November on charges of depriving miners of civil rights guaranteed by the national labor relations act.

Summons for them to appear at the opening of federal district court at London, Ky., on Nov. 22 were sent to the United States commissioner there last night after a federal grand jury here had returned a blanket indictment against them.

Special United States Attorneys General Amos W. W. Woodcock and George P. Jones presented to the grand jury testimony adduced before the senate civil liberties committee in its recent investigation of Harlan county conditions.

In addition, more than 100 witnesses, most of them coal miners who said they were from Harlan county, went before the jury.

The indictment charged the defendants had "unlawfully and feloniously" conspired since July 3, 1935, to prevent miners from organizing or joining labor unions, and from bargaining collectively.

It charged Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton with using the power of his office to appoint the other said law officer defendants as deputy sheriffs, thereby giving them greater authority and power to threaten, beat and kill.

Matamoras Colonists Invite Chief Executive

Palmer, Alaska—(U)—The Matamoras valley colony council today invited President Roosevelt to come north and inspect the federal colony.

In a wire to the president, sent care of John D. Borthen, publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and chairman of the president's council, said:

"Come and see first hand what we are actually experiencing and stand by accomplishing, and compare facts and reality with unfounded and unfair criticism that has been lodged against us."

KIDNAP VICTIM

Councilmen Will Consider Buying Old Post Office

Mayor Calls Special Meeting to Discuss Possible Purchase

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., today called a special meeting of the common council for 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon to decide what is to be done about the old post office building which has been offered for sale by the federal government.

The city has the first legal option on the building to purchase it for half of its appraised valuation, which is about $35,000, it was reported. It has been suggested that the structure be renovated and used as a city hall and also that the police station and jail be transferred to the building.

If the city buys the building, it would remain city property until it is no longer used by the city. If the city at any time discontinues use of the building it would, revert back to the federal government and any money spent in improvements would be lost, the mayor said.

The mayor urged all interested taxpayers to attend Wednesday's council session where the problem will be threshed out. Bids will be opened by the federal government Oct. 30.

Egg Harbor Youth Is Sent to Reformatory

Green Bay—(U)—Raymond Whipple, 16, Egg Harbor youth was sentenced to from one to five years in Wisconsin state reformatory by Circuit Judge Henry Graess Monday after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to rape on a 7-year-old girl.

He was first brought in on a charge of taking indecent liberties, but Judge Graess refused to accept a plea on this count, and the more serious offense was substituted.

The girl was on her way home from school last week, it was brought out, and Whipple was on his way to a golf course where he was a caddy. He entered the girl into the woods and there attempted to assault her, it was brought out. She told her mother, and his arrest followed.

Wants 'Widest Use' of Power From Federal Dams

LISTS ADVANTAGES Promises 'Definitely Balanced' Budget Next Year

Bonneville Dam, Ore.—(U)—President Roosevelt stood on this great federal power-impounding project today and asserted its cost would be returned many times over in improved navigation, cheaper electricity, and distribution of power to "hundreds of small communities within a great radius."

In the first formal address of his west coast trip, he tied in this $51,000,000 Columbia basin undertaking with his program for regional and national planning. He declared, too, that instead of spending half as much on armaments as some nations, America was wiser in building such projects to give "more wealth, better living and greater happiness for our children."

More Small Communities
The president also predicted through broadened use of electric power a "wider geographical distribution of population" through the building up of smaller communities.

Promised a "definitely balanced" budget for the next fiscal year—July 1, 1938.

Forecast "ultimate development" of the St. Lawrence waterway for power and navigation improvement.

The text of President Roosevelt's address at Bonneville dam is published on page 4 of this issue.

ment. A treaty with Canada on this project was rejected by the senate several years ago.

Favored a policy of the "widest use" of power at Bonneville, Grand Coulee and other federal dams.

Re-advocated better land use and conservation of water resources.

Denied his proposal would "set up all powerful authorities which would destroy state lines, take away government and make what people call a totalitarian or authoritarian or some other kind of a dangerous national centralized control."

Will Study Needs
"Most people realize," he said on the latter point, "that the exact opposite is the truth—that regional commissions will be far more closely in touch with the needs of all the localities and all the people in their respective regions than a system of plans which originate in the capital of the nation."

The president led up to his prediction of a redistribution of population by relating how New York state, when he was governor, discouraged the idea of planning any other great manufacturing city like Pittsburgh near the proposed St. Lawrence dam site and adopted a policy of distribution of the power to benefit hundreds of smaller towns.

After predicting every community in the Columbia basin would be wholly electrified in the not far distant future, he added:

"It is because I am thinking of the nation and the venture fifty years from now that I venture the further prospect that as time passes we will do everything in our power to encourage the building up of the smaller communities of the United States."

Some Cities Too Big
"Today many people are beginning to realize that there is inherent weakness in cities which become too large and inherent strength in rural areas. A geographical distribution of population."

"An over-large city inevitably means problems caused by over-concentration. Real estate values and rents become too high; the time consumed in going from one's home to one's

Bar Association Committee Considering Plan to Probe Black's Fitness for Office

Resolution Offered by Retired Dean of Louisiana Law School

Kansas City—The American bar association's powerful resolution committee began consideration today of a proposal to investigate the fitness of Hugo L. Black for membership on the supreme court.

Offered by Robert Lee Tullis, retired as dean of Louisiana State university's law school after a rift with the late Huey P. Long, the terse resolution suggested:

"That it is the sense of this association that membership in a secret, oath-bound order actuated by religious and racial animosity is incompatible with membership in the Supreme Court of the United States and that the relevant facts in regard to the latest appointee to that high post should be ascertained by an impartial committee of five created by this association."

Privately members of the association expressed doubt the resolution would reach the convention floor, but the Louisiana attorney and educator was offered opportunity at a committee hearing today to defend his proposal. The resolution must go through the committee before it is reported for convention action Thursday.

Another proposal appeared coincidentally with a proposal introduced to the Junior Bar association suggesting candidates for judicial office be required to announce publicly their affiliations with "secret and subversive" organizations.

Other resolutions proposed investigation of sources of income of law enforcement officers; uniform marriage and divorce laws, and a requirement 60 per cent of law school faculty members shall have been practicing attorneys for five years before appointment.

Criticism of the administration and of President Roosevelt's court plan was carried over to a dinner meeting last night addressed by Joseph B. Ely, Democrat and former governor of Massachusetts.

Ely attributed to the administration a definite plan to minimize the influence of the bar in opposition to its program.

Ely quoted President Roosevelt in his Constitution day address as having made a direct attack on the profession as "obstructors of progress toward economic security and national constitutional interpretation."

Stanley Reed, solicitor general of the United States, quietly listened while Ely criticized the president, but said later in an interview: "The New Deal's objectives of social and economic welfare are generally accepted by all. The differences arise in the means of obtaining those objectives. Any discussion must be based on the agreement that both the New Dealers and their opponents are sincere in their respective attitudes."

OFFICE READY—Washington—(AP)—Except for such minor details as washing the windows in his office, everything is ready for Justice Hugo L. Black's debut in the supreme court on Monday.

Nationwide interest has developed over his seating because of allegations that he is a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

None of the plain reading "Mr. Justice Black" in obituary letters on bronze—already have been screwed to a massive oak door and anchored to the back of a judicial chair.

The newest member of the court is scheduled to arrive tomorrow at Norfolk, Va., after a European vacation.

Thus far, he has maintained strict silence on the Klan allegations. Some observers thought he might continue that policy in the belief the furore soon will die down. Others were of the opinion that, after communicating with President Roosevelt, he would issue a statement.

Mr. Roosevelt is on the west coast and will not return to Washington until after the supreme court meets next Monday. He and Black, however, might discuss the situation by telephone.

Many lawyers expressed the belief the new justice might go ahead with his supreme court duties before getting in touch with the man who appointed him to the tribunal.

A petition challenging Black's right to a seat on constitutional grounds has been filed by Albert Lewis, former federal judge in the Virgin Islands. Under normal procedure no action will be taken on it until Oct. 11.

Loss of Social Security Card May Cause Difficulties, Postmaster Says

Greater care in keeping track of social security cards carrying account numbers was urged today by Postmaster Stephen Balliet who said that "two or three persons who have lost them are coming to the post office every day to apply for new ones."

The loss of their cards and failure to remember the number has hampered several persons in obtaining employment, Balliet said. If the person has forgotten the number, it sometimes takes several months after a new application is made before another card is received.

In a small bulletin enclosed with account numbers, the social security board urges persons to keep their cards in a safe place. "Write your number down in several places," the bulletin advises. "In case you

LaFollette May Veto Proposal for 5-Day Deer Season

Predictions of Adverse Action Based on Governor's Delay

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—While partisans on each side of the question continued a vigorous controversy, belief grew at the capitol Monday that Governor LaFollette will veto the recommendation of the conservation commission and the county game and fish committees for a five day open season on deer in the state this fall.

Predictions of the veto were made on the basis of the governor's delay in acting on the open season order. It was pointed out that the governor has approved other commission orders recently.

The conservation commission, on the basis of a state-wide meeting of representatives of local sportsmen here this summer, voted to approve an open season for deer in 30 northern and central counties for five days beginning November 29. By law commission acts must be signed by the governor.

Hears Kresky—In the meantime Governor LaFollette yesterday heard Senator Michael F. Kresky point to conditions in Oconto county as a justification for deer shooting this fall. Kresky, representing Brown and Oconto counties, urged the governor to approve the deer season.

While the governor pondered, and was bombarded by urgings from both sides, he also recalled the observations made by newspapermen and others of his party on his fishing trip in northern Wisconsin last weekend.

Investigation by the correspondents who accompanied the gubernatorial party, including the Post-Crescent representative, showed that sentiment on a shooting season this fall was pretty sharply divided, but that all parties agreed that there are plenty of deer in the northern forests. Resort operators, particularly, are vehement in denouncing those who would kill off one of their principal natural assets, the deer population.

Wardens, on the other hand, testified that there are more deer in the woods this year than ever before, but that feeding conditions for the winter are not promising. In fact, said one conservation warden who has spent a good share of his adult life in the woods, there is a strong probability that the population may be large for the available winter forage, and that a considerable number may starve if the winter is severe and the snows heavy.

Want 400 in Schools in State Forensic Bureau

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Aiming at a goal of 400 member schools this year, the Wisconsin High School Forensic association, sponsored by the University of Wisconsin Extension department of debating and public discussion, is now beginning to function in the nine districts of the state.

The common debate subject this year will be on the merits of the unicameral legislature, with the question, "Resolved, that the several states should adopt a unicameral system of legislation."

The final registration date has been set for December 1 for forensic entries from all schools.

Four speech institutes have been planned by the association this year. Two are scheduled at Shawano and Madison, in November, while Spooner and Sparta are the possible centers. Miss Ethel Rockwell, adviser in drama for the association, has prepared a short sketch for practice work and criticism at these institutes.

Last year's membership in the association, 384 schools, gave more than 7,000 Wisconsin high school students an opportunity to participate in organized forensic work, debate, dramatics, oratory, declamation, extemporaneous speaking and reading.

"When a card is lost and the person doesn't remember the number, an entirely new application must be made out," Balliet stated. "And if information on this one differs even slightly from that on the first application, the person may be delayed for a long time until it is straightened out."

Applications for new account numbers must be sent to the social security field office in Green Bay.

Uses Novel Approach in Teaching Pupils Safety

"Would you like to hear a story about Dickie Squirrel?" This is the novel approach Sergeant Carl Radtke of the Appleton police department is using in giving talks on safety to children in kindergartens of the public schools.

Taking the subject of a squirrel immediately gets the attention of the children, Sergeant Radtke finds, and usually dispels any fear a child might have towards a policeman.

In proceeding with the story of the squirrel Sergeant Radtke points out that it is dangerous for the squirrel to dash across the streets and that the same is true for children. He then instructs them in the meaning of signal lights and the lines marking street crossings.

A series of talks on safety also are being given by the sergeant to other grades in the public schools. Yesterday he spoke to pupils at the Columbus school and this afternoon at the Franklin school.

Other schools on the speaking schedule are: Edison, Wednesday; Washington, Oct. 4; McKinley, Oct. 5; Wilson, Oct. 6, and Roosevelt, Oct. 7.

Morrissey Stands Pat Against State Grants for Relief

Rush Lake Democrat Claims Taxpayer Help Is Wisconsin Need

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Senator Pierce R. Morrissey, Rush Lake Democrat who represents Calumet and Winnebago counties, today continued steadfast in a unique position on the problem of relief appropriations.

While others of his conservation colleagues differed with the administration only in the distribution of the relief funds to be appropriated, Morrissey renewed his declaration that there is no longer any need for the state to spend money to provide funds for local direct relief.

If the disappointed LaFollette administration, which has already disowned its original bill which has been amended beyond recognition, turns about and kills it, he will be content, Morrissey said yesterday.

"It's a lovely thing, to appropriate taxpayers' millions for relief every year, lovely for those who don't want to work," he exclaimed.

Warmed up, Morrissey went on to explain his attitude on the relief question. What is needed in Wisconsin just now, said he, is taxpayer relief, especially for those persons in the 40 to 50 age bracket, whose homes are mortgaged, who are paying heavy taxes, and who have been displaced in industry by younger men.

Morrissey also was visibly pleased about the statement by Norton J. Williams of Neenah, his Republican opponent for his senate seat in the last campaign, that Morrissey voted "as he would have" in his four year term, and that Morrissey is accordingly entitled to Republican support in his bid for reelection next year.

State's Outdoor Relief Costs in Slight Decline

June Figure Only $40,000 Less Than in Corresponding Month of 1936

Outdoor relief costs in Wisconsin decreased only $42,000 between June 1936 and June 1937, according to the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance.

"Cost of outdoor relief decreased from about $867,000 in June 1936 to $825,000 in June 1937 while the number of persons receiving outdoor relief decreased from 125,000 to 115,000 between the same months," the Alliance bulletin states.

"These 115,000 persons on outdoor relief represented a case load of 34,400 cases as a case includes more than one person, usually a family. Of the 34,400 cases on outdoor relief in June this year it is estimated that 17,600 were employable, 14,166 were unemployable and 2,700 were transients.

"The cost of outdoor relief for the next 15 months to January 1939 will probably be about $15,000,000," according to alliance estimates. "Social security aid will cost another $15,000,000 and federal works programs about $62,500,000. Local costs of these three major programs may total as high as $25,000,000; an estimated $9,700,000 local costs of outdoor relief, $4,500,000 local share of social security aid, and $9,700,000 local costs of federal works relief program."

"The alliance bulletin also pointed to changing methods of administering relief."

"Withdrawal of federal aid and reduction of state aid for relief caused seventeen counties to revert to the district system so that by Sept. 1, 1937 only 35 counties were using the county system of relief administration, 26 were under the district system and 10 counties under a combination of group and district systems."

County May Take Over Part of Old Highway 41

Since the new beltline of Highway 41 has been opened from Appleton to McCarthy's crossing north of Kaukauna, the old Highway 41 from Richmond street through Appleton and Kaukauna will no longer be maintained by the state, according to county officials. At the present time it comes under the status of a town road, but it is expected the county board at its November session will include the stretch in the county trunk system. A 2-mile link of the new beltline just west of the city is being constructed by the Bloomer Construction company. The new pavement will connect the section from Appleton to Neenah and starts at the junction with Highway 10. A section of Highway 10 has been torn up to make way for a wide intersection.

State Makes New High in Products Of Condenseries

More Than 791,000,000 Pounds Manufactured Last Year

More than 791,000,000 pounds of condensery products were manufactured in Wisconsin last year, and an all-time high point was reached in the state's production, according to the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States Departments of Agriculture.

This great quantity of condensery products represents more than one-third of the nation's output. Wisconsin's rise to the largest producer in the nation has been quite rapid in recent years. The crop reporting service points out that about 9 per cent of the total milk production in the state in 1921 was used by condenseries and last year the proportion was almost 15 per cent.

There are over 70 condenseries in the state, and if their total production of last year were packed in freight cars it would make a train of about 26,000 cars. More than one and a half billion pounds of Wisconsin milk were used by the state's condenseries in the manufacture of their products last year. This immense amount of milk represents the production for a year of approximately 330,000 cows.

Production of condensery products in the state is largely confined to the east central, south central, and southeastern sections, although Chippewa and Clark counties also produce substantial quantities. Manitowoc county produces more than 147 million pounds of condensed and evaporated whole milk or almost twice as much as any other county in the state. Washington county ranks second with 83,812,000 pounds. Other large producers are as follows: Chippewa, 43,204,000 pounds; Waupaca, 41,536,000; Dane, 40,736,000; Walworth, 36,305,000; and Clark, 35,166,000.

Insurgent Forces Continue Advance In Gijon Sector

Rivadesella Falls Despite Resistance by Asturian Troops

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier—(AP)—Spanish insurgents followed up the occupation of strategic Rivadesella with cleanup operations today in surrounding villages of that sector of the Gijon government's last seaport stronghold in the northwest.

Rivadesella, Biscayan fishing port about 30 air miles east of Gijon, fell yesterday despite strong resistance by the government, or Asturian, troops.

Asturian fortifications on the east bank of the Sella river and eight nearby villages also fell to the insurgents.

Francisco's communique said the general advance on Gijon from the southern sector, near the border of Leon and Oviedo provinces, was continuing with the heaviest fighting around the mountain village of Tarna.

The insurgents reported a fresh government defeat and fresh insurgent advances in separated sectors of the Aragon, or northeastern battlefield. Government attacks were said to have been repulsed near Orma near Fuentes.

New positions were wrested from the government in the Villamayor sector, the communique said.

Report Rain, Snow

Government advances on the upper Aragon fighting were lacking. It was said that heavy rain and snowfall had slowed up activities. The government, however, reported insurgents had been repulsed south of Madrid after several hours of night fighting.

Government authorities in Madrid ordered speedy trials for thousands of prisoners caught in an alleged anti-government conspiracy in the former republican capital.

As the arrests continued, General Jose Miaja, the government commander on the central front, said a tribunal would be brought from Valencia, present republican capital, to administer quick justice.

Reports from Madrid last week declared the anti-government plot had been traced directly to the Argentine embassy which, it was said, served as general headquarters for the conspirators who planned to throw an armed force at the government rearward at a propitious moment.

Roosevelt Lauds Power Projects

work and back again becomes excessive; congestion of streets and other transportation problems arise; truck gardens disappear because the backyard is too small; the cost of living of the average family rises far too high.

The president said there was "doubtless a reasonable balance in all of this and it is a balance which ought to be given more and more study."

No one would suggest, he said, that Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane should stop their growth, but he added their healthiest growth depends on a simultaneous healthy growth of every smaller community within a radius of hundreds of miles.

Declaring better land use and water conservation were matters of "national concern," he said if the government had the knowledge many years ago it has now and the willingness to act, it would have saved the taxpayers in the last few years "at least two billion dollars."

He said this would have been done by avoiding planting vast areas that should have been kept in grazing, preventing overgrowing, checking soil erosion and denudation of forests and controlling disastrous fires.

The president said the $51,000,000 Bonneville dam complete except for installation of initial power machinery, would enable shipping to use the Columbia river "much further inland than at present, and give an outlet to the enormous valuable agricultural and mineral products of Oregon and Washington and Idaho."

His generators will be turned on in a few months.

Morgenthau and Eccles Seeking Balanced Budget

Will Advocate New and Heavier Taxes if Necessary to Gain End

Washington—(AP)—The administration's two chief fiscal officers will urge President Roosevelt to balance the budget in the next fiscal year, informed officials said today, even if it requires new and heavier taxes.

Secretary Morgenthau and Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board are reported to be convinced a balance between income and spending is essential to bolster business confidence and permit a paring down of the $36,864,000,000 public debt.

Although neither has commented on the recent stock market decline, authorities pictured both as believing this drop probably resulted in part from business uncertainty over the government's future fiscal course.

Starts Conferences

Morgenthau, seeking to eliminate the red-ink entries written on federal account books since 1931, already has started a series of conferences about balancing the budget in 1938-39.

At his press conference late yesterday, he said "we are exploring every avenue through which savings might be effected" during the current fiscal year.

The deficit stands now at $247,000,000, compared with Mr. Roosevelt's estimate of $418,000,000 for the entire fiscal year. Treasury authorities said they were hopeful the deficit could be held under the president's estimate, but expressed doubt that it could be eliminated entirely.

If the treasury secretary's survey of this year's fiscal picture shows that a budget balance can not be attained without higher taxes, officials said, he will recommend that heavier levies be provided.

Before urging additional levies, however, officials said Morgenthau will make every effort to pull down expenditures to the level of receipts.

Symco Man Placed on Probation for 2 Years

Waupaca—Jack Clapp, 27, Symco, was given a suspended 2-year sentence and put on probation by Judge A. F. Scheller in county court yesterday.

Clapp, who was arrested Thursday night by Sheriff D. R. Campbell, pleaded guilty of larceny in justice court of Justice M. B. Scott Friday and was bound over. He was accused of removing chattels from an automobile of a Bear Creek man.

Three men from New London, Shiocton and Fremont, who have pleaded guilty to statutory charges, will be sentenced by Judge Byron B. Park in circuit court at Stevens Point Friday.

Ben Beyer, 23, Shiocton, and E. L. McAndrew, 43, New London, pleaded guilty Sept. 21 to the charges in the court of Justice P. A. Archibald at New London and were bound over. Arthur Krablean, 29, Fremont, pleaded guilty to a similar charge before Justice M. B. Scott, Waupaca, and was bound over after waiving preliminary hearing on Sept. 20.

Permit Is Issued For New Dwelling

Inspector Authorizes Building Estimated at $2,490 Today

Four permits, one for a new home, one for a garage and two for remodeling were issued today by the city building inspector.

Frank Krause was given a permit to erect a dwelling at an estimated cost of $2,000, at 312 S. Douglas street. The building will be of frame construction and will be 24 by 22 feet.

Permits to remodel were issued to the Conway hotel, $50, and to H. Danz, 729 W. Lorraine street, $40. The Conway will remodel its Oneida street entrance and Mr. Danz will remodel his garage.

A permit was also issued to Mrs. W. T. Ross, 224 N. Drew street, to construct a garage 18 by 20 feet. The structure is estimated to cost $100.

Pension Office to Stay In Odd Fellows Building

The executive committee of the county board yesterday voted to pay $30 per month for rent of space in the Odd Fellows building for the pension department. It approved payment of $2 per month for janitor service. The committee was informed by the city that space in the old post office building would cost $35 per month.

Outagamie county employees may no longer receive their salaries in advance, the committee decided, unless it is at vacation time or approval of the county board chairman is given. Purchase of six knapsack fire pumps was ordered upon recommendation of the fire prevention committee. They will be placed at various points in the county. Payments of $175 to the city of Appleton on a pavement assessment and $15.75 to the city of Kaukauna for a sewer assessment were authorized.

First Fall Meeting of Dental Society Oct. 5

The Outagamie County Dental association will meet at 6:30 next Tuesday night, Oct. 5, in the Conway hotel. Dr. Ray Perschbacher, secretary, said today. It will be the first fall meeting of the organization.

Dim Lights for Safety

With them I do not agree and never have agreed because, unlike them, I am thinking of the future of the United States. My conception of liberty does not permit an individual citizen or group of citizens to commit acts of depredation against nature in such a way as to harm their neighbors, and especially to harm the future generations of Americans. If many years ago we had had the necessary knowledge and especially the necessary willingness on the part of the federal government to act on it, we would have saved a sum which, in the last few years, has cost the taxpayers of the nation at least two billion dollars.

Coming back to the watershed of the Columbia river, which covers the greater part of the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and a part of Montana, it is increasingly important that we think of that region as a unit and especially in terms of the whole population of that area as it is today and as we expect it will be fifty and even a hundred years from now.

St. Lawrence Project

I appreciate and understand fully the desire of some who live close to some of the great sources of power in this watershed to seek the advantages which come from geographical proximity.

More than eight years ago, when I became governor of the state of New York, we developed plans for the harnessing of the St. Lawrence river and the production of a vast amount of cheap power. The good people who lived within a few miles of the proposed dam were enthused by the prospect of building up a huge manufacturing center close to the source of the power—another Pittsburgh—a vast city of whirling machinery.

It was a natural dream, but wiser counsels prevailed and the government of the state laid down a policy based on the distribution of the proposed power to as wide an area as the science of the transmission would permit.

National Planning Looks Toward America's Future Chief Executive States

Bonneville Dam, Ore.—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's address at Bonneville dam follows:

Today I have a feeling of real satisfaction in witnessing the completion of another great national project and of pleasure in the fact that in its inception, four years ago, I had some part.

My interest in the whole of the valley of the great Columbia river goes back to 1920 when I first studied its mighty possibilities. Again, in 1932 I visited Oregon and Washington and Idaho and took occasion in Portland to express views which have since, through the action of the congress, become a recorded part of American national policy.

Almost exactly three years ago, I inspected the early construction stages of this dam at Bonneville. The more we study the water resources of the nation, the more we accept the fact that their use is a matter of national concern, and that in our planning for their use our line of thinking must include great regions as well as narrower localities.

Could Have Saved Farms

If, for example, we had known as much and acted as effectively twenty and thirty and forty years ago as we do today in the development of the use of land in that great semi-arid strip in the center of the country which runs from the Canadian border to Texas, we could have prevented in great part the abandonment of thousands and thousands of farms in portions of ten states and thus prevented the migration of thousands of destitute families from those areas into the states of Washington and Oregon and California.

We would have done this by avoiding the plowing up of vast areas which should have been kept in grazing range and by stricter regulations to prevent overgrazing. At the same time we would have checked soil erosion, stopped the denudation to our forests and controlled disastrous fires.

Some of my friends who talk glibly of the right of any individual to do anything he wants with any of his property take the point of view that it is not the concern of federal or state or local government to interfere with what they miscall "the liberty of the individual."

Thinks of Future

With them I do not agree and never have agreed because, unlike them, I am thinking of the future of the United States. My conception of liberty does not permit an individual citizen or group of citizens to commit acts of depredation against nature in such a way as to harm their neighbors, and especially to harm the future generations of Americans. If many years ago we had had the necessary knowledge and especially the necessary willingness on the part of the federal government to act on it, we would have saved a sum which, in the last few years, has cost the taxpayers of the nation at least two billion dollars.

Coming back to the watershed of the Columbia river, which covers the greater part of the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and a part of Montana, it is increasingly important that we think of that region as a unit and especially in terms of the whole population of that area as it is today and as we expect it will be fifty and even a hundred years from now.

St. Lawrence Project

I appreciate and understand fully the desire of some who live close to some of the great sources of power in this watershed to seek the advantages which come from geographical proximity.

More than eight years ago, when I became governor of the state of New York, we developed plans for the harnessing of the St. Lawrence river and the production of a vast amount of cheap power. The good people who lived within a few miles of the proposed dam were enthused by the prospect of building up a huge manufacturing center close to the source of the power—another Pittsburgh—a vast city of whirling machinery.

It was a natural dream, but wiser counsels prevailed and the government of the state laid down a policy based on the distribution of the proposed power to as wide an area as the science of the transmission would permit.

We felt that the governor and the legislature of the state owed it to the people in the smaller communities for hundreds of miles around to give them the benefit of cheap electricity in their homes and their farms and their shops. I have no doubt of its ultimate development, and of the application of the policy of the widest possible

"Widest Use" Policy

That is why in developing electricity from this Bonneville dam, from the Grand Coulee dam and from other dams to be built on the Columbia and its tributaries, the policy of the widest use ought to prevail. The transmission of electricity is making such scientific strides today that we can well visualize a date, not far distant, when every community in this great area will be wholly electrified.

It is because I am thinking of the nation and the region fifty years from now that I venture the further prophesy that as time passes we will do everything in our power to encourage the building up of the smaller communities of the United States. Today many people are beginning to realize that there is inherent weakness in cities which become too large and inherent strength in a wider geographical distribution of population.

"Reasonable Balance"

An over-large city inevitably meets problems caused by oversize, real estate values and rents become too high; the time consumed in going from one's home to one's work and back again becomes excessive; congestion of streets and other transportation problems arise; truck gardens disappear because the backyard is too small; the cost of living of the average family rises far too high.

There is doubtless a reasonable balance in all of this and it is a balance which ought to be given more and more study. No one would suggest, for example, that the great cities of Portland and Tacoma and Seattle and Spokane should stop their growth, but it is a fact that they could grow unhealthily at the expense of all the smaller communities of which they form logical centers.

Their healthiest growth actually depends on a simultaneous healthy growth of every smaller community within a radius of hundreds of miles.

Planning Boards

Your situation in the northwest is in this respect no different from the situation in the other great regions of the nation. That is why it has been proposed in the congress that regional planning boards be set up for the purpose of co-ordinating the planning for the future in seven or eight natural geographical regions.

You may have read here as elsewhere many misleading and utterly untrue statements in some papers and by some politicians that this proposed legislation would set up all powerful authorities which would destroy state lines, take away local government and make what people call a totalitarian or authoritarian or some other kind of a dangerous national centralized control.

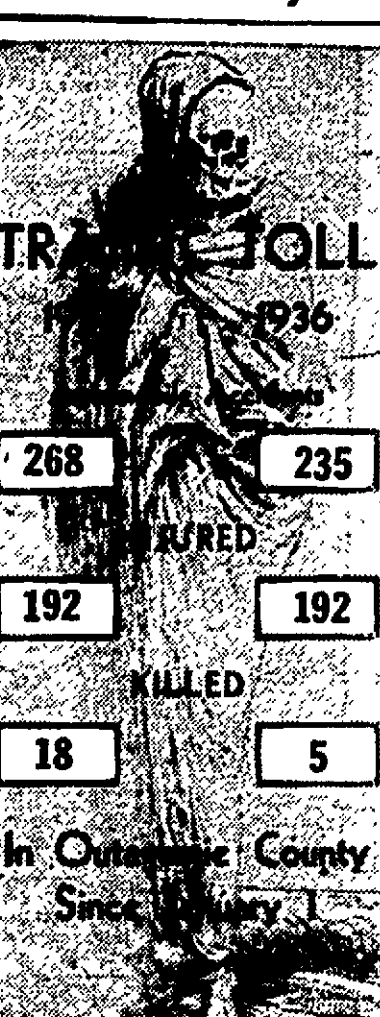

Most people realize that the exact opposite is the truth—that regional commissions will be far more closely in touch with the needs of all the localities and all the people in their respective regions than a system of plans which originates in the capital of the nation.

By decentralizing as I have proposed, the chief executive, the various government departments, and the congress itself will be able to get from each region a carefully worked out plan each year—a plan based on future needs, a plan which will seek primarily to help all the people of the region without unduly favoring any one locality or discriminating against any other.

Plan "From Bottom"

In other words, the responsibility of the federal government for the welfare of its citizens will not come from the top in the form of unplanned, hit or miss appropriations of money, but will progress to the national capital from the ground up—from the communities and counties and states which lie within each of the logical geographical areas.

Another great advantage will be served by this process of planning from the bottom up. Under our laws the president submits to the congress an annual budget—a budget which, by the way, we expect to have definitely balanced by the next fiscal year.

In this budget we know how much can properly be expended for the development of our natural resources, the protection of our soil, the construction of our highways and buildings, the maintenance of our harbors and channels and all the other elements which fall under the general heading of public works.

Describes Project

By regional planning it will be vastly easier for the executive branch and the congress to determine how the appropriations for the following year shall be fitted most fairly and equitably into the total amount which our national pocketbook allows us safely to spend.

To you who live thousands of miles away in other parts of the United States, I want to give two or three simple facts. This Bonneville dam, on the Columbia river, 42 miles east of Portland, with Oregon on the south side of the river and Washington on the north, is one of the major power and navigation projects undertaken since 1933.

It is 170 feet high and 1,250 feet long. It has been built by the corps of engineers of the war department, and when fully completed, with part of its power installations, will cost $51,000,000.

Helps Shipping

Its lock will enable shipping to use this great waterway much further inland than at present, and give an outlet to the enormously valuable agricultural and mineral products of Oregon and Washington and Idaho. Its generators ultimately will produce 520,000 horsepower of electricity.

Truly, in the construction of this dam we have had our eyes on the future of the nation. Its cost will be returned to the people of the United States many times over in the improvement of navigation and transportation, the cheapening of electric power, and the distribution of the power to hundreds of small communities within a great radius.

As I look upon Bonneville dam today, I cannot help the thought that instead of spending, as some nations do, half their national income in piling up armaments and more armaments for purposes of war, we in America are wiser in using our wealth on projects like this which will give us more wealth, better living and greater happiness for our children.

Britain, France Avert Action on Spanish Conflict

Ister William Munters of Latvia, president of the 23-nation Sino-Japanese committee, explained its purpose was to give delegates not represented on the committee an opportunity to subscribe to it. Julio Alvarez del Vayo, republican Spain's league delegate, then took the floor to support the resolution. At the conclusion of his address, the Aga Khan, chairman of the assembly, announced the body had approved the condemnation without dissenting vote.

The British condemnation of Japanese action in the undeclared war in China, as approved by the advisory committee, expressed "profound distress at the loss of life caused to innocent civilians including great numbers of women and children, as the result of such bombardment."

Can't Make Excuse

The resolution declared "no excuse can be made for such acts, which have aroused horror and indignation throughout the world," and "solemnly" condemned such attacks.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, China's delegate, had urged the league to brand Japan the "wrong-doer of the world" and an aggressor in the Sino-Japanese war—if the league could not go further to "enforce international law and principles of the (league) covenant."

Alvarez del Vayo's speech was applauded loudly. Then Koo, mounting the rostrum and evidently overcome with emotion, voiced China's gratitude for the prompt decision—a decision, he said, "which will be hailed with satisfaction by all humanity."

The advisory committee's meeting scheduled for today was suddenly canceled with no reason publicly ascribed but reports were current that the leading delegations wished more time to explore the problem of what more could be done to deal practically with the Far Eastern conflict.

OUR MODERN AGE

By LEO J. MURPHY, D. C. SCIENCE AND SUPERSTITION

The white man has always considered the Indians of a very superstitious nature, but with the passing of time it is being proven that many of the red men's ideas were directly influenced by nature. Scientists have confirmed that the Indians of the Southwest did really see "the sky rain fire."

By joining scientific data with Indian superstition the Department of Interior has been able to conclude that the volcanic Sunset Crater did erupt fire and smoke some time in the 8th or 9th century.

Facts prove that chiropractic adjustments can end kidney troubles. If you experience these troubles, visit Leo J. Murphy, D. C., of 231 Insurance Bldg., for a complete, accurate X-ray examination which will quickly disclose the exact cause of your particular kidney disorder. Murphy can then remove this cause by applying correct, improved methods of modern chiropractic.

PANNECK Chiropractic Clinic

Man's first duty is to keep himself well; his next is to help others to do so. Many prominent and influential people have been cared for at this Clinic. These people came here sick, discouraged, hoping that they might find help. They want to live. Difficult problem cases come here such as hay fever, ulcers of the stomach, headaches, heart trouble, gall stone cases and many others too numerous to mention. Under our Chiropractic vertebral adjustment its like planting rose bushes and watching the buds appear and finally the full bloom rose cases come where who are like dying roses, they are withering, dying by inches. We adjust their causes at this Clinic correctly. We see evidence of life returning into these withered, dried up bodies, and finally send them home enjoying life. We present different cases to show how severe some of them could be and get well under my HIO method.

Case record No. 63, age 19—Came to this Clinic on Sept. 16, 1936. Pains in lower dorsal or back, very annoying, general health poor, severe fall on head when child three years of age, never was well since. Had mumps in spring. Coming here and putting himself under my personal supervision and was told of results on similar cases that I have taken care of in this Clinic. At the end of four months the case was dismissed as our instruments indicated that the correction in his upper cervical or neck was made. The last report is that given by father in his letter on Sept. 16, 1937.

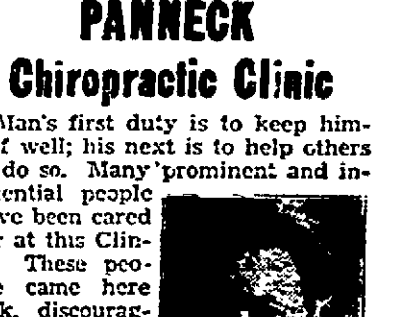

"Our son is getting along fine, thanks to you. He has no complaints all summer of his headache and backache and is feeling fine. If it wasn't for you and your wonderful work we would have lost our boy. It surely is wonderful what you have done for us." You too can be made well by making a health appointment at this Clinic. Oil Chiefs Move Into Madison for Anti-Trust Trial

18 Large Companies Must Answer Charges of Conspiracy

Madison — (7) — The oil industry will start moving on Madison this week so its affairs may continue uninterrupted when the federal government's anti-trust case goes to trial here Oct. 4.

On that date 18 large oil companies, six subsidiaries, three publications and 47 individuals must answer charges of conspiracy under the Sherman anti-trust act which carry penalties up to $5,000 fines or five years imprisonment upon conviction.

The housing problem has been a major one in preparations for the trial.

Already 125 rooms in Madison hotels have been reserved, some beginning Monday, for oil executives and aides who will help them carry on their business for the duration of the trial, which court attaches estimate will last 10 weeks.

Some of the oil men who are bringing their families have rented homes and apartments.

Lawyers Lease Floor

Two corporations have taken offices here and defense attorneys have leased the ground floor of a former bank building a block from the post office where the trial will be held.

Even the special session of the state legislature has had to bow to the oil trial. Legislators who ordinarily stay at certain hotels have been notified they must vacate their rooms when the oil men arrive.

Governor Philip F. LaFollette limited his call for the special session to relief to expedite matters and told the lawmakers pointedly they could accomplish a great deal in three weeks if they so desired. The three-week period would end two days after the trial gets under way.

The indictment on which the defendants will be tried at this time charges them with manipulating the market so as to extract large sums from gasoline jobbers and require consumers to pay artificially raised prices, in restraint of interstate commerce.

1,354 Motor Accident Cases Settled in 1936

Madison — (7) — The Industrial commission reported Monday it settled 1,354 motor vehicle accident cases in 1936 under the workmen's compensation act.

This total included 44 fatalities, one case of permanent total disability, 76 cases of permanent partial disability and 1,233 temporary disability injuries.

Total compensation benefits amounted to $448,730, of which $33,474 went for medical expense and $8,800 for funerals.

Classifying 43 per cent of the accidents as occurring among eight industries, the commission listed them as: garages, 156 cases; road and street construction, 116 cases; trucking, 74; salesmen, 67; creameries and dairies, 44; policemen, 44; oil dealers, 41; coal dealers, 39.

The purchase of three new pin-setting machines for the bowling alleys at the Y. M. C. A. has been authorized by the board of directors. Bids for the machines are being received and the order will be placed within the next few days, according to Homer Gebhardt, general secretary.

An 8-team ladies league is being organized at the "Y" alleys.

Winnebagoes and Oneidas In Camps for Harvesting Of Bumper Cranberry Crop

Wisconsin Rapids, Wis. — (7) — Winnebago and Oneida Indians, with their squaw and black-eyed papooses, from the slopes of Skunk hill and elsewhere, camped today at a hundred wood county spots, not to dance and pow-wow, but to earn dollars in Wisconsin's bumper cranberry harvest, estimated at 11,225,000 pounds.

The back-breaking labor of the cranberry harvest apparently appeals to the Indians. Every year soon after the first frosts the urge to work calls and the trek to this area, mostly by dilapidated automobile, begins. Often they pitch camp in the same pine grove year after year.

Fortune and nature smiled on both the Indians and Wisconsin cranberry growers this year. The Indians, some 1,200 men, will have more work than ever before and the growers expect to harvest a record-breaking crop of 11,225,000 pounds, more than a million pounds over the previous high yield.

Wisconsin's production is estimated at one-sixth of the country's total, with Massachusetts, New Jersey, Oregon and Washington supplying the balance of a total crop of upwards of 69,000,000 pounds.

For the information of those who have the impression that cranberries grow on bushes, and the belief is not uncommon, it should be explained they grow on vines, three or four inches high. Acid peat or muck soil is essential to a productive bog.

Moats to carry water for irrigation as well as to cover the vines and fruit when frosts come and to form a protective ice covering during winter months, surround the bogs. Cross channels connect the moats.

Now at harvest time the blanket of green vines is dotted by millions of ruby red berries, ready for the Indians' box-rakes, an implement with forks extending from the lower edge of a box with hooped handles. With the rake, the Indians sweep back and forth while in a bent-over position stripping the fruit from the vines. It is back-breaking work and feet get cold shoving in water several hours even though protected by rubber boots. From the box-rake the berries are poured into crates which they drag along behind them.

The Indians vie with each other in their raking, while squaws and children pick by hand, although not infrequently children are charged with responsibility of hooking fish in the irrigation ditches to replenish the family larder.

The Winnebagoes are particularly proud to their raking ability and make claims of superiority over the Oneidas. In raking contests the last two years the Winnebagoes have won the championship. In this year's contest, held yesterday, Jesse Mike, Neillsville, raked 10 crates, approximately 10 bushes, in 20 minutes, to win. Jesse carried back to his camp a silver loving cup to substantiate his championship. Last year, his cousin, Bill Mike, won.

In all the Indians will have 30 to 40 days of work raking and in the packing plants—or $120 to $160 for each man.

Rural Program to Be Inaugurated at RRA Model Town

$250,000 Allocated for Project on 3,000 Acre Tract

Milwaukee — (7) — Sherwood L. Reeder, community manager of Greendale, the resettlement administration's "town of the future" near Milwaukee, said today $250,000 has been allocated for a rural program to be coordinated with the Greendale project.

The appropriation, Reeder said, means that the 3,000 acres in the tract, of which the town proper occupies less than 200, will be organized along economical farm lines in the use of existing buildings and land.

"The appropriation of $250,000 does not mean that the government is increasing the amount to be spent at Greendale," Reeder said, "but that we are taking certain funds already set up for construction and allocating this amount for rural development."

"We now have the means of modernizing all existing structures in the area that can be of use. Those that cannot be economically restored will be demolished. The work of replanting farm land already has proceeded to a point where each tract is being devoted more nearly to the kind of use that should be made of it."

Land in the "town and country" development is retained under government ownership, Reeder said. As rapidly as land was acquired, it was leased and maintained under cultivation in the two crop seasons that the project has been in progress. Tenants have cooperated in resorting soil fertility.

Sturgeon Bay Doctor To Pilot Plane for Professional Trips

Sturgeon Bay — (7) — When a doctor's in a hurry, he wants to go places in a hurry.

That's why Dr. D. E. Dorchester of Sturgeon Bay took up aviation. The doctor at the present time is a competent amateur pilot with 60 solo hours to his credit. As soon as he obtains his pilot's license, Dr. Dorchester intends to purchase a plane of his own in which he proposes to make frequent hops to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn.

Dr. Dorchester is only one of a group of Sturgeon Bay business and professional men who have become aviation enthusiasts. Karl Reynolds, cherry grower and secretary of the Wisconsin State Association of Commerce is given credit for starting it all when he induced Ed Hedeen, Racine, Wis., pilot, to establish an airport at the Bay city. Reynolds learned to fly, and a flock of fledglings soon followed his example.

Residents of Greendale village will not operate the farms. Each place will have an experienced farmer in charge. Selection of tenants for the next leasing season, beginning March 1, 1938, under the permanent program, is being made after investigation of applicants' qualifications.

Greendale is one of three model town-and-country communities in the United States, initiated by the suburban division of the Resettlement administration, now the Farm Security Administration, a division of the department of agriculture.

TWO STRONG MEN

History is written when men who command great power sit down together.

The meeting of Hitler and Mussolini in Berlin may prove to be important, or it may not. Historians of the future may ignore it, or they may look back to it as do present day chroniclers when they discuss the consequences of that famous gathering on the Field of the Cloth of Gold when the Kings of England and of France met, some hundreds of years ago, to decide Europe's fate.

Europe and the peoples of Europe were all that mattered, then, in the known world.

But, now, the meeting of these two strong men may have consequences that will change the face of things.

It is not likely that we will be told all that they talk about. It must be true that they are as concerned about the problems that will be raised when they consider their successors as they are about the more immediate problems that confront them. Dictators have been faced always with the same problems. In the old days when the Caesars and the emperors seized control in Rome their deaths by assassination or natural causes usually heralded the outbreaks of civil wars.

Whatever we may think of them, these are strong men. They hold in their hands the control of powerful peoples. They must wonder what will be done with the power they control when they pass from the scene.

Dictators are lonesome folk, and determined ones. They do not like to think that the results of their labors will be dissipated with their deaths. Julius had his Anthony, Hitler has his Goering, Mussolini his Ciano, but no one of them has been sure that the power he has wielded can be passed to hands as strong as his. Another dictator, Bonaparte, believed that he had solved the problem of the disposition of power when he divided it among members of his family. His was an unhappy decision.

We may be witnessing, in the meeting of these two strong men, one of the important events of contemporary history and one whose consequences are unpredictable. We can only hope that these men will realize that the power they wield has potentialities that can destroy our civilization, and that they will be less concerned about power, as such, than about the happiness and well being of millions of individuals who may be affected by the decisions they make.

THE SHED CAVES IN

The Wyandotte County Lake Dam down in Missouri, just finished by the national government at a cost of $1,500,000, has collapsed.

The earliest reports say that the project is a total loss in that the crumbling of the structure was so complete it could only be rebuilt at an expense exceeding that of the first structure because of the necessity of removing the jumbled ruins.

While the structure was some 1400 feet long, and the strip that collapsed is but 800 feet in length it was so located at the center, and of the greatest height and width as to make it not only the most important part of the dam but its costliest part.

The story comes from Missouri that reliable engineers warned the government that the structure was doomed in that sufficient borings and shorings and bases had not been constructed. These engineers advanced a determined opinion that the construction, 30 feet wide at the top and 50 feet imbedded in the soil, would slip because of the sort of material in which it was placed and the manner in which it was constructed.

But, we presume, the political engineers snapped their fingers and guffawed long and musically at the warnings.

The government now learns that it can get engineers to say anything that is wanted if it isn't particular concerning the experience, standing or character of those whose opinions it seeks.

By the same standard professional opinions can be obtained to any point or to support any proposition at almost any time.

All of this is because a few men slip into the professions who are perfectly cold in giving their opinion whenever they can see waiting for them a satisfactory check.

This breed of engineers has waxed fat upon this administration. It has waxed fat on Quoddy. It cashed in big on the Florida ship canal. It probably received as much as $100,000 of the appropriation for the Wyandotte Lake Dam. It has been in clover. Now the country begins to pay the bills.

If America could stand it, if our valuable traditions would not be shattered forevermore, we should like to see Mr. Roosevelt stay in office until surrounded by the wrecks of his shabby ventures into a field of which he understood nothing and in which he was largely guided by men who in turn were guided by the dollar mark.

Wyandotte, we are sorry to say, is only the beginning. That declaration can be ventured without the claim of any particular knowledge of the engineering problems involved in these numerous national ventures. It can be declared with safety upon the positive principle that political engineers will wreck anything they touch and the statement may be supported by all odds excepting the casual chance that the unexpected may happen.

AN ISLAND IN THE SKY

"Hope rules a land forever green:
All powers that serve the bright eyed queen are confident and gay;
Clouds at her bidding disappear;
Points she to aught?—the bliss draws near.
And Fancy smooths the way."

Hope and optimism, which do strange though often good things to men, were responsible for many fanciful expectations when a recent scientific expedition lifted itself to the top of a 250-acre island of the sky pompously christened Siva's Temple.

Perhaps all these hopeful ones have read Conan Doyle's "Lost Continent" with the same romantic spirit with which they had thumbed the worn pages that detailed the breathless exploits of Tom Sawyer, and Huckleberry Finn. Certainly those of the most imaginative turn of mind half expected the expedition would run across a snorting dinosaur or at least a saber-toothed tiger just waiting up there all these thousands of years for the scientists to get around for the introduction.

But, if the 250-acre plateau standing in the sky was formed by erosion it must have been a comparatively slow process, whereas if it were caused by an earthly convulsion, the inhabitants of the wilds were not so thickly crowded in that each 250-acre tract in this great land could be expected to present its correct proportion of the total population.

Men are arousing themselves nowadays to the keenest interest in the slightest fragment of evidence concerning anything unexplored, particularly when the thought occurs to them that it may lead by some miraculous short cut to the hoary past. But this is because men are fickle. Their nerves have been jangled by the stale sameness of life since the adventure of discovery has practically ceased to exist with this generation.

Yet when they were surrounded by that same adventure they longed and prayed for the quiet and rest to be expected after all horizons had been explored.

Wrote Robert Louis Stevenson reflecting the thoughts of a generation now gathered to their fathers:

"When we have discovered a continent, or crossed a chain of mountains, it is only to find another ocean or another plain upon the further side. Oh, toiling hands of mortals! Oh, wearied feet, traveling ye know not whither!"

BOMB AND BOND CRASHES
As bombs and shells crashed in Shanghai, what amounts to a crash of Japanese bonds occurred in the London and New York security markets. The immediate significance of the 5-point drop is problematical. Powers of governments to make war are great after the killing starts and the first casualty lists are posted.

Italy's poor financial situation, when her Ethiopian conquest began, raised the question: "What will she use for money?" Mussolini's dictatorship was able not only to subdue Ethiopia but maintain the armament which since has participated on General Franco's side in the Spanish civil war.

Early this year Japan was believed to be in imminent danger of undergoing disastrous monetary inflation. While the present scale of hostilities at Shanghai appears much minor to that recalled in the battles there five years ago, the preliminaries at Shanghai, together with the operations at Peiping, Tientsin and North China, seem inevitably to mean a larger, bloodier and more destructive Japanese-Chinese war.

From the material standpoint afterwards, even in Japan, the prior Shanghai clash was regarded as a losing venture. Apparently, the dominant Japanese militaryists have concluded that their success in China, besides seizure of the North, requires a trip on the Lower Yangtze valley and destruction of the military power under Chang Kaleshek, the head of the Chinese central government.

That will run into money!
No doubt something will be made to do for the money. Popular passions being inflamed, governments can let the future take care of itself.

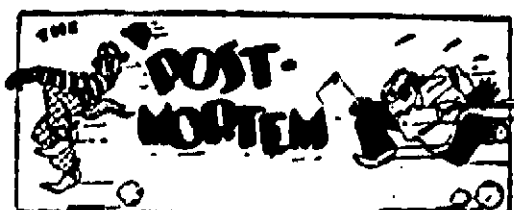

As let us hope, the people of the United States have thoroughly learned, the consequences of disregarding war costs are painfully felt for many a long year. Little or no light is shed on the internal reaction in Japan to a situation imposing on the Japanese people the costs and sacrifices of war on the sole pretext to complete a conquest of China—Detroit News.

Some 100,000 in average of 50,000 more persons have left the United States annually than have entered it.

IT IS reliably reported that Prexy Roosevelt will call an extra session of congress . . . it is reliably reported that Prexy Roosevelt will NOT call an extra session of congress . . . I trust he won't—it might interfere with our enjoyment of the football season . . . what ever he does, the chances are a lot of people won't like it worth a darn . . . speaking of football reminds me that the Wisconsin team, which I observed in action on Saturday, and will, the boss willing, observe in action again next Saturday, is a very interesting aggregation indeed . . . this team is a distinct shock to one who has seen Wisconsin teams for the past thirteen years—it is actually out there accomplishing something . . . looked good in spots . . . and not bad enough in other spots to make a great deal of difference . . . but I still feel the same way about Pittsburgh that I did last week . . .

THERE'S STILL HOPE

"Way back when—in days of childhood, I was but a squalling brat, Getting orders from our elders, "Don't do this," and "Can't do that." I had several older brothers, Sisters;—cousins by the score. Taking turns to rock my cradle. Sometimes even walked the floor. One or two vowed mighty vengeance "Wait 'till you get big," they'd say, "Gotta sit and rock your cradle When I wanna go and play!" O'er my head that threat has hovered Like a sword of Damocles, Making all my life a nightmare, Causing shaking at the knees. "Till one day I read a poem, Mrs. G. W. eased my mind. Saying that I'd been forgiven. Thank you, "Ducky," you are kind. Now there's just the Big Potato, He may, too, relent some day. And decide I've been forgiven For the times he couldn't play."

—THE LITTLE BUNDLE.

The return to standard time throughout the nation has no direct effect on the living habits of people in these parts who are not allowed to take advantage of the daylight saving business. It does have quite an effect, however, on the habits of radio listeners, in which classification all of us are to be found now and then. People will probably continue to tune in late for programs all week long, despite all the efforts on the part of the medicine show people to call our attention to the change.

As might have been expected, Marquette's showing against Ripon as contrasted to Wisconsin's showing against South Dakota State, is making it tough for Badger backers to get bets that might help them catch up for the reverses of the past two years.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

ZOO IN MINIATURE

The camel stands beside a dog,
A lion and a little frog,
Three penguins strut, a peacock spreads
Bright feathers by the eager heads
Of zebra, tiger and giraffe,
A cowboy rides nearby to laugh
At such a motley crew! I see
An elephant, a chimpanzee—
And smile a little bit myself
At my young daughter's knickknack shelf!

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Construction of a new middle dam near the Fox River Paper company mill will be started at once, according to officials of the company. A Ford touring car, 1921 model, stolen last Friday night from its parking place on the Midway was recovered by police Monday and returned to its owner, Harvey Wallace, 215 W. Spring street. The car was abandoned on N. Pacific street near the entrance to Riverside cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Peterson and Miss Gertrude Vanecky, Menasha, returned Monday from a 3,000-mile automobile trip to Sault Ste. Marie, Toronto, Niagara, Buffalo, Erie, Cleveland and Chicago.

A group of 30 relatives called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Harder, Neenah, Sunday afternoon, to assist them in celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Senator R. M. LaFollette was entertained at a luncheon Monday at the Conway hotel by Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer, and Congressman George Schneider.

A marriage license was issued Tuesday by John E. Hueschel, county clerk, to Lawrence Nussbaum, route 5, Appleton, and Miss Mabel Dern, Appleton.

Plastering on the first and second floors of the Elks clubhouse was completed and it was expected that the new building would be ready for occupancy about Nov. 1.

The Appleton Crescent's straw vote on the presidential race showed 104 for Wilson, 35 for Roosevelt and 32 for Taft.

It was held that a high school student, working for the school for compensation, comes under the workman's compensation act the same as under any outside employer. A. H. Krueger received a copy of the findings and award of the industrial commission in the case of George J. Schmitz versus the city of Appleton in which the commission found for the student and awarded him $1,000 damages. Schmitz had suffered a hand injury.

Miss Dorothy Schilling, daughter of Mrs. Anna Schilling, Grand Chute, and Robert W. Ebbens, were married at 9 o'clock that morning at St. Joseph's church. Attendees were Miss Mary Schilling, sister of the bride, and Robert J. Ebbens, cousin of the bridegroom.

A marriage license was granted to Joseph Miller, Lemira, and Ludmilla Kuhn, Hortonville.

Nineteen divorces were granted in the local courts during the year ended Sept. 30, 1912, according to a report of Abe Danielson, clerk of court.

PRESIDENTIAL APPRECIATION OF THE SCENERY

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

BIZARRE OR GROTESQUE.

IT IS NOT ODD HOUSE.

Give a knave an inch and he'll take an ell. Most states and provinces have laws regulating the practice of medicine, defining practice as the diagnosis or treatment of human ailments, injuries, etc., establishing minimum educational qualifications for persons who seek a license to engage in practice. But here and there a number of persons who lack the educational qualifications required to obtain a license, decide to den and recognition anyway. They organize, carry on propaganda, maintain a lobby in the state or provincial legislature, assert that "pills and potions" are worthless or harmful and that all human ailments are caused by, let us say, wrong food combinations or the west wind. Presently the state or provincial legislature lets down the bars and admits the new kids as soon as they are well broken in the neck kind of healers gradually adopt antiseptics, anesthetics, external medicaments, rums, antioxins, sedatives—and presently they are prescribing as nearly as they can contrive to prescribe the same measures, including the worthless pills and potions, as ordinary doctors for having taken the law seriously; and on the public for having entrusted to half-wits and grafters the regulation of this vital matter.

John, daughter of Mrs. W. J. W., writes:

"You are spoiling my mother and making my life miserable. Now she wants to put a ramp or runway in the house in place of the stairs. She can go up in two or three long strides and perhaps slide down. She argues that it will save energy wasted in climbing stairs many times a day.

"Your description of me is perfect—the hoop skirts and catnip. Of course I'd 'swoon'—if you were here."

Sure enough, it was Jean's mother, Mrs. W. J. W., who recited the heart-rending story here recently, of how she had cut the footboards off from all the beds, put the dining table on wheels and yearned to have a swing settee in the living-room before a wide window looking out over lawn and shrubbery—but was restrained from indulging her taste in this by the entreaties of her daughter.

But, darn it, I don't know now. Maybe the girl is a bit facetious about this thing. Before it goes any further I desire to make it clear that the ramp or runway in place of stairs in the house is not my idea at all, but the idea of Mrs. W. J. W., who it is an excellent idea—excuse me a moment—I just started to measure and pace off the front stairs, but my boss caught me and demanded "now what!"

Let me assure readers that everything I have suggested or approved for Odd House is quite serious and, in my opinion, likely to promote happier and healthier living. We want nothing bizarre or grotesque in Odd House. Jean's mother's ramp deserves careful consideration, and we invite comments or views of readers, to help us decide upon it.

Answer—Yes, Skilled roentgenologists (physicians skilled in X-ray diagnosis)—not X-ray laboratory technicians—can measure the capacity of the pelvis with great precision. At 38 a woman should be in her prime physical condition and never so fit for maternity. (Copyright, 1937)

Your Birthday

"LIBRA"

If September 29 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:15 A. M., to 1:15 P. M.; from 2:15 to 4:15 P. M., and from 8:15 to 10:15 P. M. The danger periods are from 9:15 to 11:15 A. M., from 4:15 to 6:15 P. M., and from 10:15 P. M. until midnight.

Trivial incidents may divert the attention from important issues, so be on your guard against this happening to you. Fascination will be an unbalancing influence this day, particularly in matters requiring the use of good judgment. Good manners are likely to be at a premium, for rudeness seemingly will be among the prevalent disturbing factors, especially in business circles. You can place more dependence upon good than on evil reports this day, for maliciousness may be back of the latter. Your staying powers ought to make some singleness of purpose work out successfully this day, so persevere no matter how difficult a task may seem. Married and engaged couples, and those whose ideals regarding love affairs have been realized, will do well to remember that discipline and discretion frequently prevent a world of trouble. Both can be used advantageously this day.

If a woman and September 29 is your birthday, if you have learned to restrain your impulses, you will find happiness in love. You require comfortable, if not luxurious, surroundings in order to work efficiently and be contented. Discordant conditions, untidiness, or any aspect of sordidness, are apt to have a bad reaction on your artistic temperament. Your nature responds to soothing odors, harmonious sounds and beautiful surroundings. You ought to seek your friends from among only cultured people, for they will not jar your susceptibilities. As a hostess, interior decorator, designer, artist, author shop or office executive you might have a splendid chance of making good. "Futural" things should make Cupid a permanent captive in your home.

The child born on September 29, in the golden time of its youth generally accumulates the seeds of a great ambition that frequently blossoms in such a manner as to win public acclaim, fame and fortune.

If a man and September 29 is your natal day, you most likely have strong opinions. Do not try to force them upon other people if you wish to be popular. As an army or navy man, explorer, botanist, agriculturist, writer, artist, actor or industrial sales engineer your ambitious dreams may come true. Successful people born on September 29:

Thomas Kingsford, Manufacturer.

Thomas P. Rossiter, Artist.

Henry H. Richardson, Architect.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER
New York—Personal notes of a New Yorker's cuff:

The new form of burlesque in which the strip-dancers fail to strip isn't going so well. "Not enough zip," a disconsolate drummer confides.

There are good shows from which the public is barred in most of the empty theaters on Broadway, but to see them one has to bribe a doorman or sneak by while he isn't looking. These are dozens of dramas being rehearsed for October openings.

Jimmy Dunn, the movie actor, was forced down in a little one-horse town on a recent cross-country flight . . . Seeking lodging in the local inn for the night, he came upon a banquet for a number of printers and type-setters. . . Recognizing him, the president of the group dragged the actor in and introduced him. Jimmy sat right down, ate dinner with the typesetters, and gave them a half-hour lecture on the evils of Hollywood.

Later, in a convivial mood, he sent a telegram to some friends, signing it "Col. Roscoe Turner." Two minutes later the local newspaper had been advised that "Col. Turner" was in town, and every available reporter spent the night in an enthusiastic but futile search for him. It is still a mystery how the "Colonel" got away without being cornered.

Branch Rickey, boss of the Cardinal farm system, is the most accessible of all big league operators. When in New York his quarters at the Governor Clinton are always a gathering place of sports writers. He calls all newspapermen by their first names.

The "Big Apple," unfortunately, has precipitated a deluge of "fruit" songs, and now the public threatens to be engulfed by a plague of the "Yes, We Have No Bananas" type. Among these warn May Singhi Breen and Peter DeRose, who predict the "fruit cycle," will be "Doing the Alligator Pear," "Grape Vine," "Fuzzy Peach Fuzz," and "Plum, Raspberry, Sc. Sky." This last looks like something Gertrude Stein thought up.

Maurice Urrillo, the French painter, used to spend so much time in jail on charge of disorderly conduct that he kept a complaint pointing kit—scalp, brushes, o.s., etc.—in each of several hoosegows. This enabled him to catch up on his home work while serving out his sentences.

So many of the famous artists have lived bizarre lives, I can't seem to get over Paul Gauguin, whose career inspired W. Somerset Maugham to write "The Moon and Six Pence." In real life Gauguin broke his leg while brawling with French sailors, abandoned his family, and fled to the South Seas, where he lived like a native.

Then there was the great Van Gogh, who began life as a minister. Shortly after being unfrocked by the church, he had an epileptic fit and chopped off one of his ears, which he presented to a lady-who-had-fallen-by-the-wayside.

Benjamin Bufano, the sculptor, is alleged to have chopped off his trigger-finger during the war. He likes to sleep in his clothes.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Everyday economic in brief:

One of the reasons for Wall street protests against the restrictive rules on stock market trading is that the volume of turnover is cut down.

Brokers get a nip out of every share of stock bought and sold on the exchange and restrictions naturally cut in where it hurts.

Neither the federal reserve board nor securities-exchange officials became especially perturbed by protests . . .

Another angle on the action of the treasury in loosening up credit by re-frosting $300,000,000 in gold is that federal reserve officials suspected that bankers were all set to begin talking higher interest rates.

Not much doubt is held here that the action of the treasury was dictated in part by the federal reserve board policy of lower interest rates.

Again the Bankers

Many government financial officials lay part of the blame for the sluggishness of the building industry at the door of bankers. They are ready enough to agree that the bankers had plenty of trouble during the low of the depression because they had slow mortgage paper on their hands, acquired in financing building during the boom.

Now, however, the bankers are expected to understand that a "new deal" in banking is here to stay, at least so long as the present reserve board is in control. The idea is that "slow" paper now will be more readily accepted by the federal reserve in exchange for cash at a low interest rate. Provision for that was made in the new banking acts.

With bankers assured that way out of a jam, it is hard for government financial hands to understand why banks continue to piddle around with the low interest rates offered by government securities, especially in the face of earnest urging by the federal reserve for them to launch out into building and farm mortgage credit lines.

Shafroth For Senator?
Just to help round up these financial notes, we have learned that Morrison Shafroth, who was ousted recently from the internal revenue bureau in what he described as a sort of squeeze play, may run for the senate against Senator Adams, conservative Democrat, Colorado.

Shafroth resigned as chief counsel of the revenue bureau with a complaint that he had been told either to put his finger on the latest device for tax-dodging, that of forming foreign corporations into which profits could be pumped out of the reach of U. S. income taxes.

He preferred taking such taxes into the courts—and was proceeding along that line—when the treasury saw in the device an opportunity for a public tax-dodger circus to help explain why the 1936 administration tax bill failed to yield what was expected of it.

La Crosse—(7)—William F. Faulkes, assistant state director and supervisor of vocational rehabilitation, said yesterday there is a need for a progressive attitude in rehabilitation for the physically handicapped and home-bound.

Steel Plants Will Shorten Activity To Match Demand

Industry Still Producing At Reasonably Profitable Rate

Well sustained production over many weeks during which buying has been at a relatively low rate has brought steelmakers sufficiently close to the end of backlogs to indicate a shortening of activity to match incoming business, says Steel.

Although the rate of buying shows an increase from the low point of midsummer it has not grown sufficiently to match shipments and some curtailment of production is necessary to meet current conditions. This situation is viewed with equanimity by steelmakers, as, in spite of not equaling earlier expectations, the industry is producing at a high and reasonably profitable rate. Well informed expectation is that for the remainder of the year steelmaking will be at 70 to 80 per cent of the rate prevailing for the first eight months.

It is recognized that consumers are faced by the psychological facts of the decline in the stock market, war scares in Europe and the Far East and political divergences at home, and naturally are keeping commitments close to actual needs. After the unusually high rate of production over a year past an adjustment downward is not to be wondered at.

There are not a few reassuring facts in the week's news. Los Angeles has placed 11,050 tons of plates for a water line, the Denver and Rio Grande has ordered 13,400 tons of rails from Colorado Fuel and Iron Corp., the New York Central has divided about 10,000 tons of steel, largely plates and shapes, for car building and repair and Ford Motor Co. is inquiring for 15,000 tons of structural for a press shop. In addition it is understood Russia has placed an order for steel axles for cars and locomotives, sufficient to keep axle shops busy six to eight weeks.

Indicate Activity

These tonnages are not enough to keep up production at the rate of earlier months but they indicate activity in various lines. Orders booked before the decline in buying are by no means exhausted and sheet mills, while able to offer prompt delivery in some cases, have tonnage on books for active production through October.

As a result of lighter operations in important producing centers, due to adjustment to light buying, the national operating rate last week declined 4 points to 76 per cent of capacity. Pittsburgh operations declined 11 points to 73 per cent, Chicago 3.5 points to 79.5, Wheeling 7 to 82 and Birmingham, Ala., 3 to 33. As a partial offset to these losses Cleveland advanced 1 point to 64, Buffalo 4 to 74, Detroit 5 to 100 and Cincinnati 9 to 80. There was no change in Eastern Pennsylvania at 63, Youngstown, O., at 70, New England at 75 and St. Louis at 74.

Automotive production last week was a shade lower than the preceding period, with 28,030 units, compared with 30,150. General Motors made 14,000 cars, compared with 13,700. Chrysler 3075 compared with 1750, with the Ford plant closed. This is probably about the low mark for the model change season and increased production may be expected to start at any time as the 1938 lines are put under way more intensively.

Scrap Is Weaker

Scrap is presenting an aspect of weakness similar to that shown in July. With a drop of $1 at Chicago, $2 at Pittsburgh and 50 to 75 cents in Eastern Pennsylvania the situation reflects the apathy of consumers, who are definitely out of the market. A moderate sale to a steel mill in Pittsburgh last week established a price $2 under the previous nominal quotation. Closing of contracts with eastern scrap dealers for 20,000 tons of steelmaking grades for

Duce, Hitler Won't Talk About Noses, Bachelors

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The state visit of the Italian duce to the German fuhrer cannot fail to remind observers of certain points of conflict and insult contained in their respective programs. These matters will be tactfully avoided by the two rivals for the title of greatest man in the world, and no German or Italian will be guilty of the ill-mannered, not to say the suicidal folly, of stressing them at this time.

Mussolini will hear many quotations from the philosophy of the fuhrer during his tour, but it may be flatly predicted that these gems will not include that portion of the Nazi belief which deals with the preservation of the Aryan purity.

"Every Aryan hero should marry only a blond Aryan woman with blue, wide-open eyes, a long oval face, a pink and white satin skin, a narrow nose and a small mouth," says the Nazi instruction to young men suffering from the sweet insanity. "A blond, blue-eyed man must marry no brunette, no Mediterranean type woman with short legs, black hair, hooked nose, full lips, a large mouth and an inclination to plumpness."

Now these be fighting words to Benito Mussolini, for he is the leader of many brunette Mediterraneans with short legs and an inclination to plumpness, and the hooked nose is the pride of his Romans. In fact, the Roman bugle or schnozzle is known the world over for the elbow in the same, about four inches from the tip. It is a big, prominent conk like the wheelbase of a rocking-horse, and is worn by many of the duce's best people as the badge of a proud and haughty aristocracy. So this gratuitous bust on the Roman beeper by the Nazi regime, although intended strictly for the guidance of the blue-eyed Aryans cannot be interpreted otherwise than a gratuitous bust on the Roman beeper.

Many In Italy Are Inclined To Plumpness

As for the brunette, short-legged Mediterranean types, including no few with an inclination to plumpness, the slur is equally inescapable. The entire south of the duce's country is peopled with brunettes, Mediterranean types with short legs, and the ladies, especially in these days of speed-up propaganda under Mussolini's orders, run to plumpness, not to say fat, in a very short time.

After a brunette, short-legged, Mediterranean type Italian lady has given four or five little ballita to the babies' corps of the invincible legions and, maybe a couple of future mothers of further ballita to the duce's reserve of military broadstock, it is not only ungentlemanly but an insult to the motherhood of Italy to refer slightly to the fact that she has taken on reef and width. Indeed, it is not generally known that Herr Hitler himself has discovered any sure method for keeping down the weight and maintaining the youthful lines of blonde, Aryan women with blue, wide-open eyes, after they have made their contribution to his invincible legions.

It seems to be the lot of ladies everywhere to tend to plumpness as the years advance, and the children increase, and the German hausfrau herself has traditionally been represented as a meek, gentle and altogether amiable person completely resigned to outside measurements.

Mussolini Has Low Opinion of Bachelors

On the other hand, we know that Mussolini has often expressed a very low opinion of bachelors and export to Europe presents an anomaly in an increase of $2.50 per ton over a larger purchase six weeks earlier. Absence of Japan from the export market on account of exchange difficulties is giving the European buyers a better opportunity to cover their needs. A factor in the increased export price is the fact that the lower freight rate to tidewater on export material is to terminate Oct. 1, thus increasing transportation charges.

Decided weakness in all markets has reduced Steel's composite of steelmaking scrap $1.25 from the preceding week, to $17.83. This compares with $17.75 for the second week in July and $17 at the end of June, and is $4.25 below the high point in April. The decline in scrap affected the iron and steel composite also, causing a decline of 21 cents to $39.98. The finished steel composite is unchanged at $61.70.

This sex hormone appears in the mud through-out the bottom of the Dead Sea, but is three times more powerful in the southern part of the sea bottom. Dr. Zondek stated that no made hormones had been found.

This is not the first time that hormone chemicals, much like man's, have been found outside the animal world. But it is the strangest location. The others were found in plants.

Sea bottom mud is a logical source. It contains all the salts and probably all the chemical elements of earth. In addition it is fed by slow deposit from many living forms.

Sherman Rogers to Talk On Americanism at State D. A. R. Convention Here

A COLORFUL career that took him from the logging and mining camps of the Pacific Northwest to the editorial staff of the Outlook and now to the lecture stage as an authority on economics is the background of Sherman Rogers, Lansing, Mich., who will speak at 9 o'clock Wednesday night at the First Methodist Episcopal church on "Constructive Americanism."

Mr. Rogers' lecture will be a part of the state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which opens here tomorrow and continues through Friday. The public will be admitted free to his lecture at 9 o'clock, as well as to the program which will precede it. From 8 to 8:30 Dr. and Mrs. Percy Fullinwider will present a musical concert, and from 8:30 to 9 Princess Nadonis Shawa, Baraboo, will present, in Indian costume, a program of her people's legends and dances, as well as some of her original poems.

Rogers was brought up in the pine woods of northern Idaho and worked until he was 30 years old in logging and mining camps in northern California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Alaska and British Columbia. He lived through the birth and life of the I.W.W. movement in those sections and watched it grow to powerful proportions.

He went into the army in 1917. Later he witnessed the Seattle general strike with its brother labor disturbances the latter part of 1918 and during the early months of 1919. He went east to create a counter-educational movement, and in his speeches in New York in 1919 and particularly his speech on "Employee Representation" before the New York State Chamber of Commerce at that organization's annual banquet, he attracted the attention of Cyrus Curtis of the Saturday Evening Post. His articles in the Post and his series in the New York World attracted Lyman Abbott of the Outlook, with the result that Rogers followed Theodore Roosevelt on the staff of that publication and remained there as long as the Abbotts were in control.

Mr. Rogers was special feature and editorial writer for Success magazine and later associate editor of Liberty for several years. He now writes features for the Farm Journal at Philadelphia.

The program which Princess Nadonis Shawa will present preceding Mr. Rogers' lecture is as follows:

Dagger Dance with tom-tom. Thoughts from Hiawatha—Ojib-way tribe. Ojibway tribal songs:

a. Old Songs
b. The Parting Song
c. The Song of a Coward
d. The Death Song
Original Indian poems by Nadonis Shawa.

The Wind Spirit
a. Swing Song
b. A Boat Song
c. The Last of the Choctaws
A Description and the Significance of the Tribal Dances:

a. The Pow-wow
b. The Buffalo Dance
c. The Eagle Dance
d. The Seven-Pointed Dance
e. The Medicine Dance
English stories (Impersonations done with monologues)

Old legends:
a. The Legend of the Corn (Sioux)
b. How the Indians Discovered the First Fire (Sioux)
c. Wac-Chia-Ka-Ga or the Man in the Moon (Winnebago)

Original poem:
The Indian
An Ojibway melody:
My Bark Canoe—with tom-tom
Big Indian Chief—song.

Your Waist Must Be Slim to Wear This Fall's Frocks

BY ADELAIDE KERR
New York — (4) — The new fall frocks, which will make their debut after Labor Day, have slender fitted waistslines.

Many are designed with a new cuirass bodice, so-named because it hugs the figure like the armor worn by knights centuries ago. Others have fitted corselet girdles with an upper seam near the bust and a lower one not far from the hip-bones. All are fitted so trimly they make a slim waist essential to 1937-38 chic.

Profiles generally are straight and so slim they are called "reed" or "pencil" silhouettes. A few gored skirts are shown. Most of them are quite short—generally 13 to 15 inches from the ground.

Busts are molded, often marked by draped or shirred effects, and hips kept slender. Necklines are fairly high or designed in vee cuts, while shoulders are accented less than last season.

In keeping with the predicted popularity of black, designers have created scores of black frocks, using the new dull-surfaced, potted crepes or silk jersey, with molded shirred bodices. Hunters' green, blue-grass green, smoke blue and wine are other fashionable shades.

Trimmings are outstanding notes in the new dresses, which many American women will make their first fall wardrobe purchases. Gold metal leaves and masks or stained glass window motifs of sequins add glitter to some black frocks, while others are enriched by black accents such as jet buttons, applique clusters of velvet grapes or touches of palette embroidery. Quilting and embroidery are smart.

Slide fasteners or leather hooks and belts of contrasting color accent slim wool street frocks.

A slim fitted diaphragm achieved by inverted tucks is the distinguishing feature of this slate blue crepe afternoon frock. Gold metal leaves stud its vee neckline and narrow belt. A veiled toque of brown, beige and slate blue velvet, brown suede gloves and gold link bracelets are worn with it.

Tokio Denies Jap Submarine Attack On Chinese Junk

Tokio—(AP)—The naval ministry issued a categorical denial today of reports from Hong Kong that a Japanese submarine sank a fleet of Chinese fishing vessels and charged the story was an example of "fabricated propaganda."

Ten Chinese were brought to Hong Kong yesterday by the German liner Scharnhorst which had rescued them from the fishing junk they said was the only one of twelve to survive an attack by a Japanese submarine. They declared 300 lives were lost.

"The Japanese navy has given stern warnings to its warships not to assault fishing vessels or junks, threatening no immunity," the navy spokesman asserted.

"There has been no instance in which a Japanese warship, including submarines, has attacked innocent Chinese fishing vessels. This is nothing but fabricated propaganda such as the groundless talk of Japanese air raids on Canton killing thousands of noncombatants."

Republican Chiefs Refuse to Accept Coalition Plan

But They Are Seeking Support of Anti-New Deal Democrats

Washington — (AP)— Republican leaders have turned thumbs down on the recent suggestion by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan for a coalition party in 1940, but they have sought to clear the way for a less formal alliance with anti-New Deal Democrats.

The kind of a coalition envisioned by most Republican leaders would be one under which Democrats would support the Republican ticket, without any change in the name of the party, similar to the way some Republicans supported President Roosevelt in 1932.

The Vandenberg proposal—for a "new coalition party"—has received virtually no support in the three conferences which Chairman John Hamilton has held with Republican leaders. The party chairman said after one meeting that there was no support for a change in the party's name.

Instead, party strategists have turned toward the other Vandenberg idea for a realignment of parties through cooperation under the Republican

Seek Support
One purpose of the unofficial mid-term national convention sought by some party leaders would be to frame a program that would invite the support of anti-New Deal Democrats. It has not been proposed that Democrats be invited to participate in the convention.

Those who hope for an informal alliance with disgruntled Democrats recall support given President Roosevelt in 1932 by four Republican senators—Norris of Nebraska, LaFollette of Wisconsin, Johnson of California and Cullins of New Mexico.

(LaFollette was a Progressive Republican in 1932. Since that time the Progressive party was launched. He now is a Progressive.)

Several other Republican senators, including Borah of Idaho, took no sides in the contest.

These senators, some Republican strategists contend, were no more dissatisfied with their party policies than some Democratic senators are today. They assert the proper platform and the proper candidate would win support from a number of Democratic senators who have been critical of the New Deal.

Not United on Convention
This would be even more likely, they argue, if the Roosevelt administration should attempt reprisals against those Democrats who have not supported its program.

Suggestions for a mid-term Republican convention, however, have stirred some dissension within the party. First publicly proposed by former President Hoover, it quickly drew support from many of those who have been close to him.

Chief opposition came from friends of Alf M. Landon, the 1936 Republican nominee, although Hamilton—who was placed in the party chairmanship by Landon—gave the proposal qualified support.

Hamilton said yesterday, after a conference with 15 Young Republicans and Robert Zwicker, Appleton; Richard Collins, Berwyn, Ill.; Charles Cox, Lido; Richard Cushman, Glen-coe, Ill.; Godfrey MacDonald, Antigo; and Robert Radcliffe, Richmond Center.

Phi Kappa Tau pledged six men including two from Appleton. They are Elwood Krueger and Wilmet MacKlin, Appleton; Quiren Hostak, Oconto Falls; Robert Mess, Phillips; War Schuette, Manitowoc; and Robert Woodard, Joliet, Ill.

WILL BE MARRIED

can leaders, that he believed a majority of national committee members approves of a national convention before the 1938 election. The committee will discuss the proposal in November.

SAYS "PURGE" NEEDED

Indianapolis—(AP)—A purge of "reactionaries" from the Republican party must precede a march of the organization back to power, Representative Hamilton Fish (R-N. Y.) believes.

"If we had 20 or 30 good funerals, we would come back overnight," he told a Republican club here last night. "We should divorce ourselves from any reactionary influence, including the American Liberty League."

He urged that the party "get rid of" John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman, "because he does not fall in line" with needs of the organization.

He contended Hamilton had alienated "millions" of Republican workers by his comments on the social security program on the eve of the last election.

Turning to the supreme court issue, Fish alleged a "conspiracy of silence" exists between President Roosevelt and Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black.

Abendroth Elected Secretary of School Philatelic Group

Frank Abendroth was elected secretary-treasurer of the Appleton High school Philatelic society at a meeting held Monday afternoon at the school. Robert Johnson was named to head the membership committee and Hubert Wettengel was chosen to head the program committee.

A drive for new members was started today with a goal of 25 members set. The club now has about 15 members and, because of a school rule, it must have at least 25 before it can apply for a charter through the student council. A notice has been posted on the main bulletin board so that students interested in stamp collecting may register for membership.

Other officers elected last week include Charles Wright, president; Hubert Wettengel, vice president; and Bruce Grossman, auctioneer.

Proper Reading Vital in Mental Growth of Child

BY ANGELO PATRI
Reading for children is about as important to mental growth and development, the quality of mental health and power; as good is for the growth of the body. We are too casual about it, too neglectful of its quality and quantity.

In the first grades of the elementary schools children learn to read. They master the mechanics of reading; learn the form and the sounds of words; learn to string them together as the eye sweeps across the printed page; learn to accent the words so as to make them take on meaning and color. But they do not really read.

Reading is the power to get the meaning of the words printed on the page. The beginners get the name words and the verbs clearly enough, but when the rest of the sentence is woven about those words the beginner is likely to lose his way. He keeps on reading mechanically, but the best of the meaning escapes him. That is why so many children cannot study their lessons economically, as to time and energy; why so many children have difficulty in working out problems in arithmetic that are mimeographed or printed for them; why many a child who might otherwise get a good mark gets a low one on written tests. They lack the power to read for the meaning. That sort of reading comes only after long practice.

This practice we hope to give the children by offering them reading for their leisure time. We hope that after learning to read they will learn to read to learn, the real object of reading. The books we offer the children then must attract them, must be easy to read, not written in involved sentences, in long and unusual words. The book that a child reads, and this means high school students too, should be easier to read than the text used in class. In class the teacher and the group are at hand to help, but in practice reading the reader is on his own.

The selection of books for leisure reading is a nice matter to be managed by the discreet teacher or parent. It will not do to push the classics. The child must begin on the books that his stage of growth can digest, and if that means the Rollo books, Henty, the Cowboy stories and the Deadly series; we must be still and hope that this stage of growth will soon pass. We have to keep slipping in a better book, and here again, much discretion is needed. What an adult thinks is better may not be what the child's mind thinks good at all.

Reading the right sort of books oneself, leaving them around, reading bits from a good book occasionally, praising a fine story, talking about a good book at table—all these are good ways of creating a child's interest and furthering his taste for good reading.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

My Neighbor Says—

Rhubarb roots can now be set out. Prepare a place for them by digging the ground deeply and working in some old manure or a liberal supply of pulverized sheep manure. New rhubarb plants are easily made by splitting up old roots, and if the clump is of fairly good size, stalks for cutting will be available next Spring. Spread the little barney dressing around the new set crowns, and dig it in when Spring comes.

A little baking powder added to the flour in which oysters are rolled before frying, will make the oysters light and fluffy.

If soup gets too salty, a pinch of brown sugar added to it, will take the salty taste away.

Allow curtains to dry thoroughly before starching. They will hold the starch and keep clean longer.

When two glasses become wedged together, place cold water in the upper one and set lower one in warm water. They will then separate with little effort.

Wash wrought iron lamp stands occasionally in warm soap suds, then rinse in clear water to remove dust that may have accumulated in crevices.

Colored glass beads mixed in with the pebbles in which bulbs are planted add much to the attractiveness of the bulb bowl.

II—GLASS BLOWERS

Early settlers in North America sometimes used oiled paper as window panes. People in Europe at that time knew how to make glass panes, but glass was expensive, and was used only by the rich.

Workman blowing a lantern globe.

The oil-paper windows of the pioneers kept out some of the chill air during winter, and let in some of the sunlight; but they did not do either job so well as glass.

How would you like to use oil-paper in place of the clear-glass windows of your home? It might be interesting for a day, but after that I feel sure you would want to go back to glass.

Today, as in ancient times, glass is made chiefly from melted sand. Soda and lime are mixed with the sand and placed in tanks which may hold as much as 250 tons. When the mixture is heated to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit, the result is a liquid with hardly more color than clear water.

When the liquid cools to a certain point, it may be dipped for use in glass making. It is then very much like a thick, sticky syrup.

Glass-blowers are interesting persons to watch. At the end of metal pipes, they pick up small masses of the liquid glass. Before your eyes, you see the liquid turn into all sorts of shapes until at last it becomes a pitcher, a water glass, or what-not.

If you were to watch a glass-blower make a window pane, without being told in advance what he was doing, you could hardly guess until the last moment.

To make a window pane, the blower dips up a quantity of the liquid and blows through the pipe. A large glass "bubble" appears, but the blower does his work in such a way that the glass takes the shape of a cylinder rather than a ball.

The cylinder is placed on a flat surface, and the ends are cut off. Then a line is cut from top to bottom, and a split is made in the glass. By heating the glass again, the blower is able to flatten it out—and there is your window glass! (For General Interest section of your scrapbook.)

Simple Safety Measure Helps Safeguard Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Generally speaking, safety plays are much more valuable in rubber bridge than they are in duplicate. In the latter game it often is worth while to take small risks in the quest for an extra trick. Even at duplicate, however, there are many hands to which safety measures should be applied. This is particularly true when the declarer can see that he has reached the best of all conceivable contracts. Consider the safe and the unsafe way of playing the following hand which occurred in a recent duplicate match:

winning with the diamond king, too, the trump finesse. This, of course, lost West's king, and a spade was returned. These declarers then found themselves in a hopeless position. They could not set up the heart suit by ruffing, because they were short one entry in the dummy. Nor did the alternate line of play, ruffing a diamond with dummy's six of trumps, work out, as they found to their sorrow. West nonchalantly ruffed in with the seven of clubs, for the setting trick.

Only two declarers gauged the problem correctly. West's spade overcall made it better than an even chance that he held the club king. His opening lead of the diamond ace and diamond continuation strongly implied a doubleton diamond. If that were so, a simple safety measure probably would be effective.

These two declarers, after winning the diamond king, played a trump from dummy and went right up with the ace, disdaining the finesse. Only then did they lead a diamond, with the intention of ruffing. Now West's fans had been drawn. He could, if he wished, ruff in with the king of clubs, but never could win another trick. There was no way to prevent declarer from discarding his remaining diamond on dummy's spade king.

It is true that if the cards had lain miraculously, with West holding three or four diamonds and East holding precisely the king and one club, six odd could have been made by finessing the club king, ruffing a diamond, and later picking up the club king without the necessity for another finesse. But since this would have involved utter perfor-

Thinning Is Important in New Coiffure

BY ELSIE PIERCE

THE long and short argument is resumed. Leading stylists continue to wear their hair fairly long. True, even many are going in for the up and up trend, but where this is done the particular part portrayed calls for such a style... or the star may be on vacation instead of on location. Hollywood's argument is: the camera calls for it, the longer haired styles usually require less retouching and the hair usually appears at its brushed and brushed best, when worn long. For informal roles the longish bob seems less "high style."

So, the argument is on once more and it's up to you which side you want to join up with. There's one detail on which all agree. Hair cannot be heavy, thick, a massive weight on the head.

1937 Fashions
You'll notice many versions of the 1930 influence, with hair piled high, modernized rolls and puffs and pompadours. You'll probably say to yourself, "Well, the hair-dresser must have had a heavier head of hair than usual to work with." That's where tricks of the trade come in, rather than heaviness of hair. It's amazing what puffing looking rolls a clever hair-dresser can make out of a wisp of hair.

Close to the Head
One of the American influences represented at the Paris Exposition is a close-to-the head vogue, consisting of swirls and verticle rolls at the sides, but definitely molded very close to the head to reveal the contour. The fashion is a bit severe and very hard for the average woman to wear, but that's ample reason for those who can wear it to do so and thereby be singled out. You can't do that with a heavy head of hair.

Restyled Via Razor

Leading American hairdresses and French stylists, too, do their hair thinning and cutting with the razor. The long blade variety. Strand by strand is tapered until the hair is stripped of its excess bulk. The hairdressing finds it easier to mold the style of the wave and the cash customized finds it easier to keep the wave in place. Not every hairdresser is a hair stylist and not everyone who cuts hair can razor strip it. That art in itself is a mark of skill. Anyway, the fact remains that it's as fashionable to have the hair thinned and molded as it is the waist-line.

My complete new booklet "Reduce by Exercise" (Booklet 202) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to the Bell Library, c/o this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

The repairing of old lawns as well as making new lawns can still be done. If it is obvious that the drainage is poor, the installation of tile drains will be well worth while. Although lime is often applied to established lawns in late winter or early spring, it may be put on just as well now. In fact, there is an advantage in autumn liming, as the material is readily washed into the soil. Old lawns as well as new lawns should be fertilized at this season. This is especially true where summer heat has impaired the vitality of the grass, although without destroying it. An application of a balanced fertilizer will give surprising results.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

HOW MANY PIECES IN A SET OF CHINA?

Dear Mrs. Post: How many pieces of china complete a set? If possible, will you list the pieces.

Answer: It is impossible for one person to make a practical list for another person unless one knows how many people are to be served and the menus likely to be chosen. All china and department stores sell sets of course, and many people buy them because a whole set is usually less expensive than the same number of pieces bought separately. On the other hand, most of us find in such sets many useless items and not half enough of those which we really need. This therefore should be taken into consideration when thinking the price cheap. The thing to do is to make your own typical menus first and decide on the number of people you are likely to entertain, and then buy your china accordingly. If a set that you like happens to contain a list that is approximately the same as your own, then so much the better. And of course too, which are made up in patterns which are also sold in open stock so that it is practical to add whatever you need to a not large set.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a very old china teapot and cream pitcher with a band of blue and gold on it. (1) I would like to know if it would be in good taste to use the chinaware on a large silver tray. (2) I would also like to know to what other uses I could put the tray. The jeweler claims it is a reproduction of an old English pattern. (3) I have pearl-handled fruit knives. Could they be used to substitute for silver? (4) I do not have bouillon spoons. Could the regular teaspoon be used appropriately? (5) And what shall I use for fruit cocktail? I have no orange spoons.

Answer: (1) Yes, I think a china tea set is lovely. In fact, I put a silver one away about ten years ago and have used a china one ever since on a silver tray with a silver teapot. (2) The tray would be suitable for whatever use you find it, such as serving refreshments or beverages, either hot or cold, or as a coffee tray. (3) Yes, certainly. (4) Again, certainly, or if the cups are very wide, use dessert spoons. (5) Use teaspoons.

Dear Mrs. Post: Your book says a table should be set for four when only three people are to sit at it. Does this mean that a place should be set for an imaginary guest or does it mean that there should be an even number of places at table? There were to be five at my table, for instance, should it be set for six, and why?

Answer: A table is never set for less than four in a very formal house, but not in an informal one. The setting for four is merely supposed to be the balanced trimming of the table. Where there are four or less, the setting is unchanged. When there are five, five places are set.

RAIN-WATER FOR ALL HOUSEHOLD USE

Just shake a little MeLo in the water. Get richer suds with less soap and cleaner work with less scouring. Use MeLo in everything from bathtub to dishpan. It's economical. Made by the makers of Saf-Fish. Sold by all grocers in two handy sizes.

MeLo

Let me advise you with all the earnestness of which I am capable to insist upon setting up your own separate home and not to go to live in the house with your in-laws, no matter how good and kind they are, or how fond you are of them. You are now on the most beautiful terms. Keep that way by keeping away from them. No house was ever built big enough to house two families of relatives.

Your father-in-law-to-be is looking at the matter from a man's point of view, which includes economy and the using of unoccupied space. He doesn't see why two women can't get along comfortably together, nor why you should want to have a home of your own. But your mother-in-law, being a woman, knows that two women, even when they are mother and daughter, cannot keep house together without clashing because there is the difference of a whole generation in their training and habits. Also she knows that every woman wants her own home in which she can do as she pleases. And Mother-in-law should be wise enough to know that what you don't see is

Lawrence Claims Black "Sold" to Public as Liberal

Says Newly Appointed Supreme Court Justice Won't Resign

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — What is former Senator Black going to do when he gets home this week, and what can he do?

These questions are uppermost in conversation as the man who has been appointed by President Roosevelt to the supreme court bench and confirmed by the senate approaches the port of Norfolk from a vacation in Europe.

Mr. Black is accused of having once taken an oath in the Ku Klux Klan, and documentary evidence to support the charge has been widely printed in the press.

The Klan oath binds its members to discriminate against Catholics, Jews, and Negroes, and to do one's utmost to prevent any of them from ever holding public office. No other fraternal order in America, secret or public, has ever, so far as known, pledged its members to such a course or anything like it.

What are the courses open to Mr. Black and what are the courses open to those who think he never should be permitted to remain on the supreme court of the United States?

1. Mr. Black can resign voluntarily or at the private request of President Roosevelt, made directly or through an intermediary. This is a highly improbable development because Mr. Roosevelt wouldn't make such a request and Mr. Black will never resign. To do so is an admission on his part that the Klan oath has warped his judicial capacity, something he never will concede.

2. Mr. Black can make a statement saying he has taken the oath and that this oath transcends any other pledge or obligation of the past and that he is willing to be judged on his record—that is, he stands ready to be impeached in the regular way—if his course as justice is found in the future to be in any way discriminatory against people of any creed or race or color. This is what Mr. Black probably will say in a public statement, even possibly avoiding any mention of earlier Klan membership on the ground that what he thinks today and says in broad terms is more important than what he thought or said a decade or more ago.

Statement to Satisfy
Such a statement will satisfy the New Dealers and the so-called "liberals" who really believe that the end justifies the means. They feel that anybody who is for racial doctrine expiates any earlier offense, no matter how libelous it may be. All the so-called "liberal" periodicals are taking that stand, but not so the Negro press or the Catholic publications. To them, liberalism means tolerance and also the fundamental attitude of a man at all times and not just when he needs political support to get elected, or sympathy when he is caught, as is Mr. Black, with a Klan membership that he concealed from his colleagues in the senate.

This question of concealment raises an interesting query as to Mr. Black's fitness. The query as to whether Mr. Black was a member of the Klan was raised while his confirmation was being debated in the United States senate. Mr. Black either led his colleagues to believe he was not a member, or else remained silent. Was this "concealment" in a legal sense? The supreme court of the United States, in Crosby vs. Buchanan, said:

"In a court of conscience, deliberate concealment is equivalent to deliberate falsehood."
But Mr. Black may have felt that he had a right to refuse to testify against himself. Certainly all the New Deal legislation on publicly floated securities, for instance, contains the important provision that concealment or omission of a "material" fact renders any issuer or seller of securities to the public liable to punishment. Mr. Black was "sold," so to speak, to the country as a liberal and that is supposed to mean a man of breadth and vision and not a man of religious or racial prejudice or intolerance. The material fact of his Klan membership was omitted by himself when the question was raised.

Next comes the problem of what the opponents of former Senator Black can do legally to prevent him from becoming an associate justice of the supreme court.

Technically, the president can do nothing more about it. Impeachment at present or next January, when congress reconvenes, is not feasible because the process applies only to acts committed during one's time of actual service as a judge.

Common Law Action
But in Washington courts there is what is known as the District of Columbia code, and the United States code. In both there is available the so-called "extraordinary writ of quo warranto." Briefly, this is a common law action which must be brought by the attorney general or prosecuting attorney directed against any person who occupies or attempts to occupy illegally any public office.

The illegality in this case relates to the fact that the constitution plainly prohibits any senator or representative from being appointed to any civil office under the United States government if the "emoluments" of that office have been increased during the term served by said senator or representative.

The "emoluments" of a supreme court justice have been increased by a law passed in March, 1937, when Mr. Black was a member of the senate. These emoluments amounted to a guarantee during retirement that congress would not cut a justice's salary, an assurance hitherto not available to retiring supreme court justices.

Application for filing a writ questioning Mr. Black's right to hold office must be presented first to the attorney general. Should the attorney general refuse, he may subject himself to a possible action of mandamus or to impeachment.

Any "interested" party can institute an action seeking the writ of "quo warranto" or "by what right" inquiry.

Here is where the difficulty of the opposition arises. For the courts have held that a private citizen has no standing in an action of this kind because he is not a sufficiently "interested" party to justify the granting of a writ.

There are, however, three groups of persons, any of whom might be considered sufficiently interested to justify maintenance of an action of this kind.

The first category includes any or all attorneys who happen to have at the present time or at any time during Mr. Black's incumbency a case pending before the supreme court of the United States.

The second group would be any duly authorized officer or committee of the American Bar association. The association is now in convention at Kansas City, and if ever there was a case for leadership by the American bar in seeing that the letter as well as the spirit of the constitution is observed, it is in the removal from the highest bench of the land of a man who is plainly ineligible by the words of the constitution itself to become a supreme court justice until January, 1939, when the term for which Mr. Black was elected would have expired.

The third group or party is the senate itself, which, on one occasion, instituted quo warranto proceedings against a man the senate had already confirmed. The senate must vote to authorize counsel to begin such proceedings, and congress does not meet till next January.

Any attorney who has a case before the supreme court may question the right of a judge to sit who may have been disqualified by some previous action to administer justice in a specific piece of litigation. There are precedents for raising the issue of disqualification in our courts of justice, and the supreme court itself has usually been very sensitive on this point, judges voluntarily refusing to sit in cases in which they had a previous law office connection or relationship.

The same principle would naturally apply to a question of constitutional qualification and Mr. Black would improve his position with the public opinion of America if he came out forthrightly and asked the supreme court to pass on the question of his eligibility under the constitution. This is in some respects an even more important question than his previous background of the Klan. For the latter is merely a reflection on the carelessness of President Roosevelt and the senate in appointing and confirming Mr. Black, while the former point involves the establishment of a precedent for all times of ignoring the constitution when a political group or faction feels itself strong enough to adopt the Machiavellian doctrine that the end always justifies the means no matter how reprehensible the means.

Cabbage Shipments Below 1936 Volume

Because of a sparse crop of early cabbage and the fact that the later crops are not ready for market, cabbage loadings at the Soo line are below last year's volume, according to a report from the freight office.

The cabbage on the lower ground in Outagamie county is fairly good this year, R. C. Swanson, agricultural agent, said today, but on higher ground is scarce. Generally, the crop does not measure up to last year's.

From A Few Telephones to 8700

FIFTY years ago there were just a few telephones in Appleton.

Today there are about 8700 telephones in Appleton — and 160 telephone employees devote their time and effort to providing local subscribers with the best possible telephone service.

Who are these employees? They are your neighbors — folks who own homes, raise families, pay taxes. You will find them seated next to you at the movie. You will meet them at the library. Their children and your children are classmates.

Some of them have been telephone workers for a long time — others have more recently secured a "job with the Telephone Company." The average period of service of the more than 5700 employees of the Wisconsin Telephone Company, including those at Appleton is over 14 years for the men and 8 years for the women.

The 160 employees who operate the Appleton telephone exchange are proud of the service they provide — proud enough to be jealous of keeping the service good and making it better. That is their constant aim. They welcome any comments or criticisms that will help them improve your telephone service.

Paving Project Nearly Finished

Work on N. Commercial Street to be Completed by Thursday

Neenah—The N. Commercial street paving project will be completed by Wednesday night or Thursday morning at the latest. City Engineer A. G. Prunsek reported today.

Part of the street has been completed and opened to traffic Monday, when cars were allowed to travel over the block from N. Water street to E. Forest avenue.

The only part of the street which serves as a connection between the Twin Cities and also as Highway 41 which will not be completed is the portion over which the North Western railway tracks run at Railroad and Hewitt streets.

Prunsek said that the railway company will pave that portion of the street.

The crew of men started paving the curbs and gutters from the railway tracks to Nicolet boulevard this morning having completed pouring of concrete from N. Water street to the tracks yesterday.

Upon the completion of the street, which is expected to be open for traffic in a week, a street dance in celebration of the opening of the street is planned.

St. Mary Eleven To Meet Kimberly Team Under Lights

Coach Miller Stresses Blocking, Tackling in Drills This Week

Menasha—Still in quest of their first victory, the St. Mary gridders began practice this week for their game Friday night at Kimberly under the lights. The game with St. John of Little Chute Sunday, which ended in a 12-all tie, revealed flaws still remaining in the Zephyr team, particularly in the offense.

Defensively the St. Mary line showed rather well as they stopped the St. John line attack on two occasions when their goal was threatened. However, the sweeps around and found the Zephyr defense napping.

Fundamentals of blocking and tackling will come in for plenty of emphasis by Coach Miller and his assistants. The St. Mary attack clicked Sunday in one consistent offensive drive leading to the first touchdown. After that, however, the gains were sporadic as blockers missed their assignments and failed to clear the way for the ball carrier.

Mistakes of the St. John game were pointed out by Coach Miller in the practice yesterday as the St. Mary gridders went through a hard session of blocking, tackling, dummy scrimmage and running plays.

Neenah Society

Neenah—Mrs. E. B. Pfefferkorn, Oshkosh, was named president of the auxiliary to the Winnebago County Medical society at the home of Mrs. W. A. Wagner, 344 Merritt street, Oshkosh, Monday afternoon.

Canavan, Mrs. H. E. Beglinger, Mrs. S. D. Greenwood, Mrs. G. A. Williamson and Mrs. H. L. Baxter.

The next meeting of the society, Oct. 25, will be held in Neenah with Mrs. M. N. Pitt as hostess. Mrs. L. P. Allen, Oshkosh, will give a book review.

Miss Gladys Michaelson, 332 Fourth street, was accompanied for Miss Goldie Levin, operatic soprano, Oshkosh, when she sang at the season's opening meeting of the Junior Hadassah Society at Hotel Schroeder, Milwaukee, Monday evening. Miss Michaelson returned this morning.

Neenah Teachers association will hold annual election of officers sometime next week after which plans for reception of new teachers will be discussed. It was decided at a short business session of executive officers this morning.

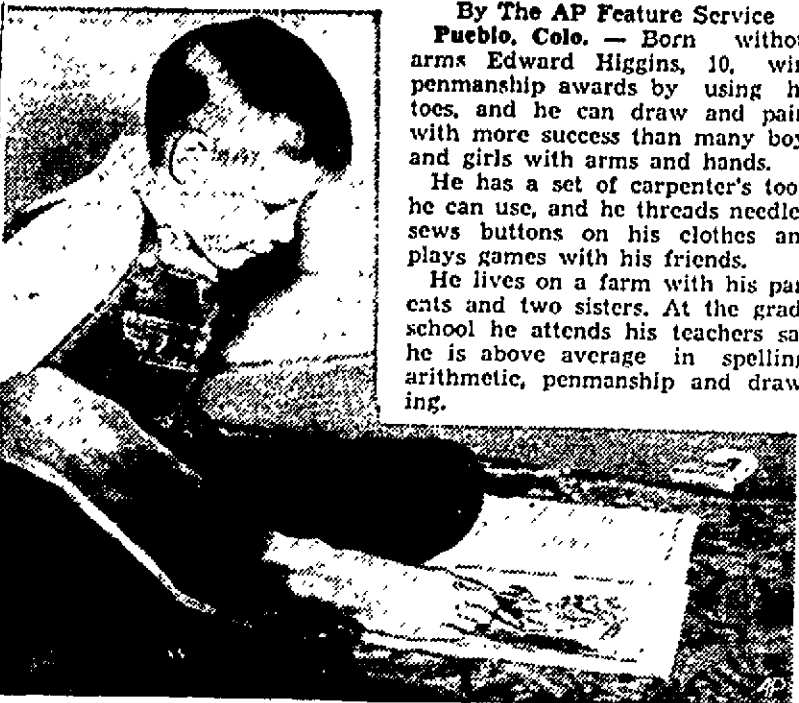

Friendly Folk Club will meet at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon in the Twin City Y. W. C. A. for the first fall meeting which is to be featured by a tea in charge of Mrs. Ira Clough.

Predicts Settlement Of Courthouse Fight

Menasha—The jurisdictional dispute as to which of two union organizations has the right to place the asbestos covering on the heating plant pipes of the new Winnebago county court house will be decided shortly, J. F. Shea, county board chairman, told the courthouse building committee yesterday.

Continuation of the dispute threatens to hold up progress on the building. The question is whether a local crew of the heating contractor or a Milwaukee crew covering the ventilators shall do the work.

R. M. Heckner, supervisor from Menasha, questioned whether the building committee had the right to make further expenditures to preserve trees on the court house lawn at the committee meeting. He said that the committee merely was commissioned to build the courthouse and favored leaving care of the trees to future meetings of the county board. He expressed the fear that additional expenditures might exceed the original appropriation.

County clerk A. E. Hedke indicated that there was a balance of about $45,000 between the $950,000 originally appropriated and the probable cost of the building. In addition only $346 of $3,000 appropriated for landscaping has been spent. No action was taken by the committee on the matter.

Banta Describes European Visit At Lions Meeting

Publisher Urges Restoration of Menasha's Natural Beauty

Menasha — Drawing his conclusions from his own trip to Europe, George Banta Jr., yesterday told the Menasha Lions club that the people of Menasha had much to be thankful for.

"Our problem," he declared, "is to do what we can to solidify our position."

The city of Menasha was described as a "pretty ideal place to live." Mr. Banta expressed the hope that the city would grow not much bigger but better and pointed to education as a means towards that end. Mr. Banta did not ask for the best band or the best football team but a school system that taught the things necessary to know to be a good citizen.

The second point of his program was restoration of natural beauty lost through the industrial development of the city. "We owe it to those coming after us to restore the natural beauty of this place. The river, which winds through the city, should be the most beautiful instead of the worst."

Mr. Banta drew his conclusions from a 2-month automobile trip through Wales, England, Scotland, Holland, Germany, Switzerland and France. Absence of road signs, narrow winding highways and the huge amount of traffic made traveling in England difficult. Holidays in England are numerous and half the population seems to celebrate them on the highway, Mr. Banta stated.

English Courteous
"We found the English people extremely courteous and considerate," Banta declared. "The British newspapers, however, reflected a feeling of jealousy towards the Americans, particularly over their success in the Olympic games. Many of the countries of Europe were described as extremely dirty with wretched living conditions."

Visiting in Germany, they were warned to be careful of what they said. The German people apparently have a great deal of faith in Hitler, Mr. Banta stated.

All over Europe there was a feeling of unrest. It was found in all classes of people, all of whom expected trouble even though they did not know from where it would come. Troops were training all over, fostering the spirit of unrest. This feeling is a result of the desperate economic situation all over Europe, Mr. Banta stated.

Move to Prevent Cholera Spread

Several Hogs Die of Disease at Town of Menasha Farm

Menasha—The appearance of hog cholera on a farm in the town of Menasha has caused R. C. Hefferman, Winnebago county agent, to call the attention of farmers to take action against the spread of the malady. Several hogs have died on the farm where the disease was discovered and all others on the place have been vaccinated. The farm has also been quarantined.

Suggestions for curbing the disease, offered by the county agent, include quarantine of all hogs brought to the farm, pasturing the hogs away from highways and streams, keeping dogs, birds and other animals away, disinfection of troughs and pens with quick lime or some other disinfectant and feeding of a laxative ration. Feeding new corn should be avoided. For complete protection a farmer may have a veterinarian vaccinate all his hogs.

Symptoms of hog cholera include: failure to come for feed or refusal to eat; huddling together in litter or bedding; stiffness, cough, discharge from the eyes and redness of skin; fever and death after being sick only a few days.

Strong DePere Team to Invade Menasha Friday

Bluejays in Good Condition After Milwaukee Tilt

Menasha—Coming through the Milwaukee East game without any serious injuries, Menasha high school gridders are now preparing to return to the conference wars. West DePere, with a veteran line and the speedy Berken, will invade the Butte des Morts field for a game Friday night under the lights.

The squad came through the Milwaukee game in fine condition. Ray Henk, guard, was shaken up in the play and taken from the game, but was again out for practice Monday night.

Speed plus a veteran, heavy line was too much for the Bluejays last week and they face the same problem this week. Connie Berken is one of the outstanding speed merchants of the conference and the Menasha gridders will have to pile up the plays before he gets out into the open. Coach VanSistine's Phantoms routed New London 25 to 0 in their first conference game.

Practice Monday night consisted chiefly of dummy scrimmage as the squad worked on mastering the rhythm of the shift. Except in the line contact wasn't violent and Coach Calder stopped the plays as soon as the runner broke through the line.

Vike, H. S. Gridders Have Easy Workouts

Both Will Show in Conference Tilts
Saturday
TERRORS AT HOME
College Squad Battles
Cornell at Mt. Vernon, Ia.

THEIR weekend victories history, Lawrence college and Appleton High school gridders last evening held easy workouts as they reviewed mistakes and pointed toward Saturday afternoon when both will be in action against conference opponents.

Appleton will play at home for the first time this season Saturday when it meets Sheboygan, the team which administered that big upset of the 1936 season at Sheboygan.

Last Friday evening Sheboygan and Fond du Lac played to a 0-0 tie but the Chairs dominated the entire game and showed considerable ability. A few bad breaks cost them the decision.

The Terrors came out of their game with Green Bay West with the usual number of bruises and bumps, but none serious. Sonny Felt twisted an ankle but is able to get around and Fred Oliver failed to return to the game in the second half because he was all in. However, he too, is ready to go again.

Lawrence college gridders attended a lecture on rules yesterday afternoon with Werner Witte, a member of the national high school federation rules committee, and an intercollegiate grid official, interpreting the regulations and answering questions.

Several of the Vikes were bruised up a bit Saturday and probably will go easy for a few days. Vande Walte appears to have a badly bruised ankle and is out of the Cornell game at Mt. Vernon, Ia., Saturday.

Joe Maertzwiler injured a shoulder, but luckily not the one that was bruised last season, and expects to get around late in the week. Joe played sensational ball on defense Saturday and generally directed team play.

Lawrence has only three days of practice before Saturday's game. The Vikes are scheduled to leave here Friday and put up at Dubuque, Ia., Friday night, moving to Mt. Vernon the next morning.

Cornell played two games last week, beating Grinnell and Monmouth both by 6 to 0 scores. The Iowans showed here last season and took a trimming but are reported to have several sensational sophomores this fall.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

THIS is a communication addressed to secretaries of the bowling leagues, to all bowlers and to alley proprietors.

As the season gets under full steam it becomes obvious there's going to be a lot of bowling to handle on the sports desk every morning. We've supplied the alleys with sheets on which to write the scores but we do wish they'd either use fresh carbons or bear down on the pencils a little harder. Many of the sheets come to the office with figures we can't read and names that can only be guessed if we don't happen to know the kegler.

We've also supplied sheets for the league standings, the high individual and team scores. We get the standings all right, but some of the alleys aren't noting the high team and individual scores. For us to go through the scores and find them takes a lot of time and every so often some bowler doesn't get his just deserts because, frankly, we don't go through the sheets if the forms aren't filled out.

Just recently we know of a bowler who rolled a 275 and should have gotten a lot of ink. He didn't because his name was buried in the score sheets. It's common knowledge around the alleys at night who has the best individual game and series score, likewise the team score and match score. So it shouldn't be any trouble to jot down the figures and names on the forms we've furnished the alleys.

We've also been asked to run a weekly honor roll—the names and scores of all the 200 bowlers—on Saturdays. To which we answer that we will—if the league secretaries furnish us with the names and scores of their 200 bowlers. We've revealed our hand on the matter, now it's up to the secretaries.

And so it appears that I've got to argue with this Walter guy at Green Bay.

In the last paragraph of his story of the Appleton-West game the other evening, he said that Chuck Sample was guilty of slugging a couple Green Bay boys. To which must answer that he was NOT, and I am and I were almost side by side when the plays in question happened.

Sample has, on defense, what I feel is a bad habit of charging headlong at a player with his arm in front of his face and catching the other lad at about the chin. And when his 190 pounds catches some 150 pound back it's quite a jar and it upsets the ball carrier in a hurry. However, it's not slugging in any sense of the word for it was Chuck who would have been ousted from several games last year and from last Friday night's game.

However, I do feel that Chuck is unnecessarily rough in such tactics and that he opens himself to a lot of criticism. I've never seen Sample deliberately hurt any boy on the football field or unintentionally, either. But he's so darned big and when he comes hurtling through the air and unless he's playing the game in the most orthodox manner, he opens himself to criticism on the score of rough play.

When he smashed into Herliche the other night at the Bay I kicked to Coach Wallace Cole, too. I realized the reaction to the play and I felt it was unnecessary roughness. For, if Chuck had gotten down and tackled, he'd have stopped Herliche as easily, he might have jarred him even more, and he would have been far and above any criticism.

Sample has been informed about the reaction to his defensive efforts. He feels badly about it, and I'm sure that this week he'll take a few extra lessons on tackling so that he'll keep himself above suspicion. It would be tough to lose him in some really important game if some official heeded the wild-eyed yells of the crowd that Sample wasn't playing the game as it should be played.

The curtain came down on the Northern State league baseball season Sunday afternoon and evening at Green Bay when Kaukauna dropped the third game of the series, 6 to 3, to the Green Sox. It was just a case of too much Johnny Rowe for the Bays and the fact that Sonny Carvenough got a bit jittery with men on bases.

When the game started and the Sheridan, Ind.—Smart blackbirds will turn this community into a hunting ground. The town board, tired of huge flocks which set up headquarters here annually, has organized blackbird vigilantes. The county side's crack marksmen to make the feathered ones unwelcome.

Kaws got several hits off Johnny and his mates started tossing the ball around, it appeared the Brewers were headed for the title. But when Carvenough got a couple men on in the third and then lost the location of the plate, things changed in a hurry.

After the ball game members of the two squads and friends of the loop gathered around the banquet table at the Beaumont and heard talks by John Coppes and Howard Bowers, Kaukauna; George Vanderloop, Little Chute; Al Borths, Manitowoc; Bernard Neuman, Two Rivers, vice president of the loop; Dick Smith, Green Bay; Baldy Egert, Appleton; and Johnny Rowe and Bob McClain, Green Bay. Johnny got a lot of praise for his efforts during the season for he pitched the Bays to their title and Kaukauna to its state tournament title.

After the speeches, Fred Cobb, Green Bay businessman and magician entertained the crowd, and then the boys attacked the last of the refreshments.

Last week when the American City Softball league had its banquet at the Eagles hall, the boys were informed that Joseph Mitchell, who played on one of the squads, was ill at the sanatorium. It was decided to present him with a gift and the fellows all contributed.

A few days later we received a letter from Joe in which he wished to express his appreciation to the group. The letter follows in part: "I am at a complete loss of words trying to thank the boys for the generous offering made in my behalf on Tuesday evening at the City league banquet. It was certainly nice of the boys to do such a thing and I hope to thank every one. Hoping you'll express my appreciation."

Newark, Columbus Meeting Tomorrow

Champions of Minor Leagues to Clash in Little World Series

Newark, N. J.—It's "farm" team against "farm" team — representatives of the two major baseball chains — in the little world series in Newark tomorrow.

A best-of-seven series will be played. Winners of the pennants in the International league and American association and survivors of extra-curricular playoff series, Newark and Columbus are the foes in the premier minor league classic. An argument for the farm system, their triumphs, as Newark is the No. 1 farm club in the New York Yankee chain, Columbus the top team in the far-flung St. Louis Cardinal domain.

Columbus won its place yesterday by beating Milwaukee, 10 to 4, to take the final American association playoff, 4 games to 2. Newark's Bears, dubbed the "wonder" of the little world series assignment last week, defeating first Syracuse and then Baltimore in playoffs without losing a game after breezing into the international championship by a 2-1 game margin.

Yearling Team to Use Badger Plays in Drill Today

Milwaukee—Marquette university's varsity football team faced a clash today with a freshman squad primed with offensive plays displayed by the University of Wisconsin last week in its victory over South Dakota State.

A series of heavy workouts stressing blocking, punting and a co-ordinated offensive were under way at Marquette in preparation for next Saturday's game with Wisconsin at Madison.

Coach Paddy Driscoll opened his tuneup program yesterday with a long dummy scrimmage in which the entire squad was schooled in new plays and a review of older ones not used in last Saturday's unimpressive victory over Ripon.

Two of Marquette's injured grid-ers returned to uniforms for the drill. They were Herb Anderson, veteran end, and Reggie Coldagelli, sophomore halfback.

Cubs Win, Giants Trip Bees Twice

Gabby Catches 100th Game; Equals Record

Chicago—(AP)—Gabby Hartnett, veteran Chicago Cubs catcher, realized one of his ambitions today. The portly backstop, who is serving his 16th season in the majors, yesterday caught his 100th game of the 1937 season, performing at Cincinnati. It gave him a mark of 12 seasons in which he has caught 100 or more games annually, equalling the major league record set by the one-time Chicago White Sox star, Ray Schalk.

In the opener, with the score tied 4-4 in the last of the eighth, the Giants filled the bases on an error, a single and a walk. At that point the usually reliable Lou Fette, running true to the rule that he can't whip the Polo Grounders, committed a balk—and boom, there went the ball game.

In the nightcap Jim Turner set the Giants down in order for six innings and got one away in the eighth, with the score 1-1. The next batter singled, then Turner, with the second out in his grasp, fumbled Bill Lohman's bunt. He retired Joe Moore, but Dick Bartell broke up his party with a two-run double.

Lohman, fresh out of the International league, earned himself a handsome set of freshman spurs by hurling a five-hitter—the Giants got four—that ran the club's winning streak to six straight and evened the score for the season at ten games each.

While the Cubs were handing the Reds their seventh loss in a row, the Dodgers gracefully dropped their twelfth to the Phillies, 11-3, in a game remarkable chiefly for Chuck Klein's two homers and long Tom Winsett's debut as a pitcher. He gave up two of the runs.

The Indians, playing their last home game, bowed to the Tigers, 2-1. Buck Newsom, after beating the Athletics, 6-2, with a five-hitter in the first game, tried to come back in the nightcap for the Red Sox, but gave up six walks in less than three innings and the Sox were shut out, 6-0.

The Yanks and Senators were rained out, while the other clubs were not scheduled.

Bruins Slip Another Half Game Behind Leaders

Associated Press Sports Writer
L IKE the man trying to go up on the down escalator, the Cubs are sliding back each time they take a forward step.

They thought they'd taken a pretty good one when they whipped the Reds yesterday, 7-4—thought so, that is, until the Giants up and took both halves of their doubleheader with the Bees. All of which meant that, despite winning, Charley Grimm's grimmer-growing crew had lost another half game.

Today they were trailing by four and a half, with only six left to play to the Giants' nine. If the Giants win four, they're in no matter what the Cubs do. Similarly, any combination of four—Giants wins and Cub losses—will get the Terry-men into the throne room for the second time.

The picture, in fact, is getting prettier by the minute for the Giants, who proved by stopping the Bees, 3-4 and 3-1, that they can win two games on ten hits with just as much eclat as the American league's world series entry, the Yanks, win one with 20.

Buckeyes, Purdue Will Open Big Ten Schedule Saturday

Game to Give Dopesters a Start: Gophers are Favored

BY EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO (AP)—Existing odds that mightily Minnesota will capture an undisputed Big Ten football title may be backed down a bit next Saturday when Ohio State and Purdue open the championship drive at Columbus.

The Galloping Gophers, who will be battling the perennially tough Nebraska Cornhuskers on the same afternoon, are not scheduled with either Ohio State or Purdue. But out of the Buckeye-Bollermaker game may come some line on whether either of these likely-looking eleven will be able to keep pace with Minnesota in conference competition.

Minnesota showed enough last Saturday to convince the railbirds it will take a great all-around eleven to sidetrack the Gophers' rush to Big Ten national honors. Coach Bernie Biornsen used five teams to crush North Dakota state 69 to 7 for the biggest point total scored by a Minnesota team in 21 years. The speedy veteran, Andy Uram, scored twice, while sophomore Harold Van Avery came through with a brilliant passing performance and a sparkling 75-yard jaunt for the final Minnesota touchdown.

Buckeyes Have Power

Ohio State, sticking to an elemental game, whipped Texas Christian 14 to 0, scoring on John Rabb's line smash and a pass to Jim Miller. The Buckeyes, while apparently lacking reserve strength, indicated they have power.

Purdue trounced Butler 33 to 7 with an attack built around the sharp-shooting Cecil Isbell.

Illinois, which looked good in a 20 to 6 win over a scrappy Ohio University eleven, opposes DePaul of Chicago, and Bob Zupke's 25th edition of the Illinois should not have much trouble with the Demons. Vanderbilt, victorious over Kentucky Saturday, is favored to start Chicago's Maroons on the losing trail.

Badgers Meet Marquette

Wisconsin, impressive in a 32 to 0 win over South Dakota state, faces a tough battle with Marquette.

Michigan, with Hunk Andersen handling the line, goes against a formidable Michigan State team, and if Harry Shipke's crew wins this one Wolverine hopes will brighten for a good season.

Indiana, which downed Centre college 12 to 0 on Corby Davis' two touchdowns, is not scheduled, and Iowa also has an open date to rest up from its 14 to 0 defeat at Seattle by Washington's Pacific coast champions.

Northwestern, defending Big Ten champion, opens its season against Iowa State, which barely managed a 14 to 12 win over Iowa State Teachers.

Picard Favorite In Golf Tourney

Faces Nelson in Final of $12,000 Belmont Open Today

Belmont, Mass.—(AP)—Henry Picard's par-smashing parade through the $12,000 Belmont open match play tournament put him in the role of favorite today against his Pennsylvania golfing neighbor, Byron Nelson, in a 36-hole final.

The Hershey, Pa. pro, who qualified for the final with a 7 and 6 victory over Ralph Guidahl, national open champion, was 22 strokes under par for the 122 holes he has played against four rivals.

Nelson, from Reading, Pa., advanced to the final by turning back Lighthorse Harry Cooper of Chicago, 5 and 4, registering 14 under par for 127 holes of match play.

Picard, born in nearby Plymouth and competing in his native state for the first time since his caddy days, conquered Lawson Little, 6 and 4 in his quarter-final match, and eliminated Wiffy Cox, 4 and 3, Tom Mahan of Beverly, 5 and 4, and Dan Galgano, 6 and 5.

Nelson's Sunday triumph was a 6 and 4 decision over Charley Lacey, but he was forced to go to the home green with Ray Mangrum and Frank Walsh and to an extra hole in his 18-hole first-round with Johnny Levinson, the New England amateur champion.

Today's final was worth $3,000 to the winner and $2,000 to the loser.

This Week Marks Grand Opening of 1937 Grid Season

Minnesota-Nebraska Battle At Lincoln Will be Headliner

BY HERBERT W. BAKER
NEW YORK (AP)—This week the entire college football contingent don its helmets for a campaign that may set up new records for attendance, gate receipts and thrills before it winds up in early December.

The week's headline attractions: Not even the crackling Big Ten duel between Ohio State and Purdue can take top billing away from the clash of Minnesota and Nebraska at Lincoln, Neb. Minnesota gave evidence of terrific power last week in burying North Dakota state under a 69-7 score.

Ohio state spilled Texas Christian, 14-0, last week while Purdue, led by the irrepressible Cecil Isbell, tossed Butler for a 33-7 loss. Their collision at Columbus may play a vital part in the conference championship race.

Michigan opens against Michigan state, routine 19-0 victor over Wayne last week; Wisconsin, triumphant 32-0 over South Dakota state, plays Marquette, hard-pressed by Little Ripon, 14-0. Illinois, impressive in a 20-6 victory over tough Ohio university, plays DePaul.

Wildcats Face Iowa State

Northwestern opens against Iowa state while Notre Dame's inaugural opponent, Drake, should give the Irish a good workout.

Saturday's three major games in the far west provided few surprises although California revealed even greater power than had been suspected in trouncing St. Mary's 30-6. Washington, thanks to Fritz Waskowitz' passes, turned back Iowa, 14-0, and Santa Clara pushed over two touchdowns in as many minutes of the fourth quarter to whip Stanford, 13-7.

This week Washington invades Los Angeles to face Southern California's Trojans, 40-0 conquerors of College of Pacific. Stanford meets Oregon, crushed 26-13 by U. C. L. A., and California plays Oregon state, needed out in a major surprise by Idaho, 7-6.

Cornell, Colgate to Meet

Safely past the first hurdle in its brutal schedule, Cornell finds Colgate's Red Raiders, just ahead. The Ithacans whipped Penn State, 26-19, by marching 65 yards to a touchdown in the last minute of play after the Nittany Lions had rallied to tie the count at 19-19.

Yale meets Maine. Harvard plays Syracuse and Princeton faces Virginia.

Navy, after a 45-0 rout of William and Mary, plays another southern conference school, the Citadel, while Army faces a hard-bitten Clemson outfit which held Tulane to a 7-0 count.

The intersectional angle is stressed heavily elsewhere in the district as Temple plays Mississippi, George Washington meets Wake Forest.

Yanks Will Knock Hubbell Out of Lot, Brietz Says

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK—Signs of a jittery new series; Joe McCarthy didn't go to Washington with the Yanks but stayed here personally to scout the Giants ... Marcel Thil and his easy look at Georgetown for France Friday ... Tired-out guy around is the photo finish chap at Rockingham park ... Only eight days of the 24-day meeting have gone into history, but more than half the races run so far have been decided by the silent films ... Lefty Gomez, first hurler in the majors to win 20 games this year, will open the world series for the Yanks ... Bob Olin versus LeRoy Haynes and Tony Galento tonight's big fight card in Philly ... Don Lambau, son of Curly, famous coach at the Green Bay Packers, is playing fullback for East Green Bay high, his pop's alma mater ... Current prices for the Minnesota-Notre Dame game are 10 bucks a pair and the chances are the ante will hit $25 by Oct. 30 ... Looks like the pay-off year for scalpers who have been trying to capitalize on Minnesota's "hot team."

162 Yearlings Report to Freshmen Mentors At Madison

Post-Crescent-Madison Bureau
Madison—Yearling contenders in the University of Wisconsin football department this week were reported to number 162, of which a total of 129 are residents of Wisconsin and the remaining are out of state students.

Illinois sends 13 young men to the first year squad, while New York follows with 6. Michigan has three representatives and Pennsylvania and New Jersey, two apiece. Other states contributing are Ohio, Oregon, Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas, Massachusetts and South Dakota, with one apiece.

The roster includes some familiar names, including a Roosevelt, Richard A. of Cleveland, who however does not claim relationship with the president. There are also some brothers of former and present varsity lights at the university.

And among the long list of candidates are many who have become familiar in Fox River Valley and Northwestern Wisconsin football competition.

They include: Deane Bosma, New Holstein, James W. Buchanan, Menasha, Frederick H. Gage, Green Bay, Richard Howman, Neenah, Lavton J. Sternbach, New Holstein, Elmer Tornow, Green Bay, Howard H. Zabel, Manitowish, John Alderkauski, James Holman and Arthur Kaems, Sheboygan, and Rex K. John, Manitowish.

In charge of the yearling squad is Burr Rippe, who is assisted by Arthur Mansfield, George Lamphar and Tom Fitzbissons.

Despite all those mid-season wild yarns, Buck Harris probably will sign as next year's Washington manager any day now. They don't call Clark Griffith the "old fox" for nothing, you know.

Missionary to Malay Is Speaker at Church

Forest Junction—Living at the equator presents its own peculiar difficulties, according to Miss Norma Craven, missionary to Malay, who addressed about 200 persons at the town of Brillion Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday evening, at a special service under the auspices of the Woman's Missionary society of the church.

While it may seem very convenient, she related to fry a steak for dinner by merely dropping it on the imaginary line as it passes through one's home, it becomes decidedly troublesome when one walks around barefoot. The experiences, however, have not been her own, but were related to her by a man from Borneo, five degrees in latitude from the Malay peninsula where Miss Craven, formerly of Wausau, Wis., has been engaged in Missionary work for the last 27 years. Home on a furlough, she has been speaking at missionary meetings in her native land. Her address Sunday evening dwelt on manners and customs of Malaysians.

Mrs. A. C. Wolfmeyer presided at the meeting. Special vocal music was supplied by a duet, Mrs. Leland H. Wolfmeyer and Mrs. Robert Gross, and a quartet, Mrs. H. L. Bastian, Mrs. Benjamin Zick, Mrs. Wesley Tamm, and Mrs. William Keuer.

Dr. Ralph Linton, an anthropologist, dedicated a book to "the next civilization."

Chapter One
Lovers Quarrel Over A 'Crook'
THE two were walking fast up Charles street in Baltimore, not looking where they were going. It was the hour when the better shops were closed, and everybody was bound homeward. Many people turned their heads to glance after the good-looking pair: the young man, tall, broad-shouldered, with curly black hair and a notable look of resolution in his dark eyes; the girl, tall also for her sex, brown-haired, peach-skinned, with that special quality of beauty that makes a man feel helpless. They were quarreling.

"He's old enough to be your father," said Neill.

"He's not!" retorted Janet. "He's only 29!"

"That's what he says!"

"You're just being hateful."

"You know nothing about this man."

"What does a girl know about any of the men she goes around with? He's an amusing companion. That's all that concerns me."

"You mean he spends his money on you."

"That's a nasty thing to say!"

"I believe he's a crook."

"You have no reason to say such a thing. You're only jealous!"

"Jealous? Of that? If that's what you want..."

"I don't want him!"

"I say he's a crook! I can trust my hunches in such matters. That's my business."

"You have never seen him!"

"I'm judging just by what you have told me about him."

"You're jealous!" she said again.

"I'm not jealous; I'm sore!" Janet laughed angrily. "What's the difference?"

"Plenty of difference. I'm not the jealous type. You and I can't be together much. Well, I don't expect you to sit home nights when I'm not here. I've always encouraged you to have a good time, and you know it!"

"Then what are you fussing about?"

"This guy Prescott Fanning sticks in my crop. He's not one of us. He's too old for you; he spends too much money; he's too slick!"

"Oh, for heaven's sake! People are always warning me about poor Prescott as if I were a school girl! I can take care of myself."

"Somebody else has warned you?" he asked quickly.

"He had no more to go on than you have."

"Who was it?"

"A lawyer here named Horace Kettering. A friend of my father's."

"What did he say?"

"Very much the same that you have said. When I pinned him down, he hadn't anything definite against Prescott."

"Anyhow, I should think you would listen to a friend of your father's."

Janet did not answer.

"Put Yourself in My Place"

Presently Neill said gloomily: "Why do we have to quarrel?"

She looked away. She was softened, but she wouldn't let him see it. "You started it."

"I'm sorry for some of the things I said... But you must admit that I've not reason to feel sore. Try to put yourself in my place..."

Yesterday I made the biggest capture of the year in our department. I put Luciano Rosazza behind the bars. You know who he is, the head of the narcotic ring in New York. He's the guy who poisons the

Little Directs Kaukauna Eleven In Passing Drills

Coch Warns Team That Toughest Part of Season Is Coming

Kaukauna—Indications that Coach Paul E. Little was by no means entirely satisfied with the play of the Kaw gridders Saturday despite their overwhelming defeat of Clintonville, 51 to 0, were present in yesterday afternoon's practice.

Clintonville is the weakest team in the conference, Little reminded the players, and the toughest part of the Kaw season is yet to come. The players should feel no great elation over their eight touchdowns Saturday, Little continued, as almost every one of them came from a break, usually a Truck fumble.

Little does admit that the Kaukauna team showed some improvement over their play a week previous at Shawano, but refuses to expect another conference championship.

Much of last night's practice was devoted to practicing passes. Most of Saturday's gains were made through the Truck line, although two passes were completed for 43 yards. Giordana will be drilled more strongly this week in running and passing, two departments of the game in which Little was expected of him previous to last Saturday's game. He had been relied mainly upon as a blocking quarterback but his showing Saturday will probably give him a direct hand in the Kaw offense.

Seniors Tryout For Class Play

Cast of "Bashful Bobby" To Consist of Six Boys, Six Girls

Kaukauna—Tryouts for the senior class play at Kaukauna high school will be held all this week and next, Miss Alice Gruenberger, dramatic coach, said yesterday. The play which has been chosen as the senior class's presentation is "Bashful Bobby," the cast of which consists of six boys and six girls.

Yesterday tryouts were started, with prospective thespians reading selections from prose and poetry in an effort to convince the coach that a part belongs to them. Next week applicants will read actual parts in the play, and the choices for the cast will be made. About 50 students have indicated their intention of trying for a part, Miss Gruenberger said.

The arrangements committee appointed by the class president in general charge of the production is composed of R. Cooper, L. Hoffmeyer, L. Wilpolt, C. Kloeppel and M. McCarty.

Commercial League Will Bowl Tonight

Kaukauna—Second round matches in the Commercial bowling league will be held tonight at the Schell alleys. Gusman Chevrolts, tied for the lead with the Pantry Lunch and Post Office fives, will bowl against the Little Chute Bottling Works, who as yet have not played in league competition. The Pantry Lunch will defend their share of the league lead against the Miller High Lites, with the third team tied for first place, the Post Office team, rolling against Hopfensperger's Meats.

Each team will endeavor to surpass the season's high team total of 936, set last week by the Post Office five in their second game against the Mellow Brews. Individuals will strive to surpass the individual league high game of 232 set by H. Olvis of Gusman's Chevrolet.

young lads with his filthy snow; even high school children. — "Well, I felt pretty pleased with myself. I've been after him for nine months. And today when I came down to Washington to report, my chief slapped me on the back and promised to give me a district on January first. 'Son, you've earned a vacation,' he said. 'Take a week off and enjoy yourself. Go some place where you're not known, and sit low, because this Rosazza guy has powerful friends who will be looking for you.'"

"So I came over to Baltimore to be with you. Riding the crest of the wave. Why, I haven't had a whole week at a time with you in two years. Gosh! Was I happy? And what did I find? That you had gone and got your head turned by this old guy, Fanning! Is it any wonder I'm sore?"

"Don't be absurd!" said Janet with fresh anger. "He isn't old, and I haven't got my head turned!" "Don't you like me any more?" he asked diffidently.

"Oh, I suppose I do. But when you make me angry, how can I feel it? What kind of a life would we have together if we got married and you flew off the handle every time I spoke to another man?" "I don't fly off the handle every time. It's only Fanning. He's a crook!"

"He isn't a crook! And I'm not going to let anybody talk to me like that! I left a good home and went to work and supported myself on my earnings so that I could be free and independent. If my people wish me to be on my own, I'm not going to let you dictate to me."

Neill looked at her longingly. "We mustn't quarrel," he said, low-voiced. "Our time together is so short."

"I don't want to quarrel," she said, lowering her head, "but you won't let me call my soul my own."

"I love you," he said. "That's not the right way to show it."

"Look," he said, "let's be quiet and sensible. Tell me more about Fanning. Who are his friends?" "He knows everybody. One of his most intimate friends is Gerald Bromley, the manager of the Cecil-Calvert."

"Anybody can be friends with a hotel manager," he said. "Now, you're being hateful again."

"Sorry," said Neill. "What's in that box under your arm?" "A new evening dress."

"Another?" "It was returned by a customer and Madame Annette let me have it for next to nothing."

"If suppose you're going to wear it tonight?" "Certainly." Neill got sore all over again. "Damn!"

They walked a block in silence. "Look, Jen," he said persuasively. "Break this date with Fanning and wear the new dress for me tonight. Lord! You don't know how much it means to me! My first night with you. I rushed over from Washington all primed for it. And I only have a week."

"I'm sorry," she said. "It's impossible. I didn't know you were coming. This little party was got for me and all the arrangements have been made. I can't get out of it now."

Neill was filled with an intolerable sense of injury. "Well, the hell with it then," he muttered. "I'd better leave you before I say something that I'll be sorry for."

"I'm not keeping you."

He came to and looked up the telephone number of Kettering's office. He was too late: They told him that Mr. Kettering had left for the day. Neill then called up his house in the suburb of Guilford but with no better luck. Mr. Kettering was not expected home to dinner.

The other man Janet had mentioned was the manager of a well known hotel. Not difficult to get hold of him. Neill entered the marble-lined lobby of the Cecil-Calvert and asked at the desk for Mr. Bromley.

"He's in the bar if you don't mind stepping in there," said the clerk.

Neill didn't mind. It was easy to pick out Mr. Bromley where he stood in the bar with a group of friends, because with his immaculate grooming and his air of good fellows he looked like nothing in the world but a hotel manager. It occurred to Neill that he had better conceal his hand in this matter, so he ordered a drink and watched his opportunity.

Presently Mr. Bromley strolled away from his friends. As he came by, Neill nodded to him in a friendly fashion.

"Hello," said Bromley. "Do I know you?" "Walter Patton is the name. I have stopped here before a couple of times, but I suppose you see so many faces you can't remember them all."

"It's a fact," said Bromley. "Will you have one with me?" asked O'Neill.

Mr. Bromley, having had a couple, was not averse to increasing the lead a little. They drank. Having thus broken the ice, Neill was able to ask: "Do you know a man called Prescott Fanning?"

"Sure. Everybody knows Fanning."

"What sort of fellow is he?" "Oh, an all-round sport, swell-looking guy; built like an athlete; elegant dresser; free with his money; a general favorite."

Neill swallowed this with a wry face. "Where's he from?" "New York banker. Investment house."

"Have you ever investigated him?" "Wasn't any need to. He hasn't tried to sell me anything."

"But I was told he was an intimate friend of yours."

"Good God, man, a mere acquaintance like 10,000 others." (Copyright, 1937, by Hulbert Footner)

Neill finds a strange little man who knows Fanning, tomorrow.

Utility Is Granted Operating Rights in Portage County Towns

Madison—The public service commission Monday granted the Wisconsin Public Service corporation operating rights in the towns of Almond, Belmont and Lanark, Portage county, so the utility may fulfill an agreement with the Waupaca-Portage Electric cooperative.

Eventually the company will serve 200 customers in these three towns and Buena Vista, the commission said, members of the cooperative in Portage county having voted to become company customers.

The commission authorized dissolution of the Sylvan Electric company, now serving 44 customers on 21 miles of line in the towns of Forest and Sylvan, Richland county, and Kickapoo, Vernon county. These customers intend to connect to the lines of the Richland Electric cooperative, the commission announced.

Other commission orders authorized:

Massey Speaks To Rotarians on Bang's Disease

Most of $5,000,000 Yearly Loss in State Due to Lower Production

Clintonville—County Agent George Massey of Waupaca was the visiting speaker at the Monday noon luncheon of the Rotary club at Hotel Marston. He talked on Bang's disease, which is prevalent among the dairy herds in this state. He said that the disease caused a loss of approximately $5,000,000 annually in Wisconsin. Most of the loss is incurred through the lowering of milk production, which amounts to about 25 per cent. Mr. Massey described symptoms of the disease and explained how it spreads in a herd. This is done mainly through the mouth when cattle feed in the same pasture.

The speaker said that the quality of beef is not affected by Bang's disease and that cattle having it can be sold for food. Human beings do not receive any ill effects from the disease through their consumption of dairy products. Of the 741 herds tested by Mr. Massey, he reported that 45 per cent were affected by it. This county has spent $8,000 so far in making the tests, which cost the farmer only 20 cents per cow. The federal government allows from $37 to $40 per head for each animal slaughtered on account of its having Bang's disease. This amount is received by the farmer in addition to the market price of the animal.

Messrs. and Mesdames George Graff, George Stevens, Melvin Kerstner, Martin Falk and Roy Peterson composed a party which spent Saturday and Sunday camping at Pickerel lake.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—Frank McHugh would have us know he isn't meek, and his favorite food isn't milk toast either. It is beef, or at least Frank was beefing, in a mild sort of way, about his milky-toasty roles in comedies.

He was just winding up one called "Larger Than Life," in which, after all possible sources of abuse, he turns and asserts himself. Frank is becoming a veritable turning worm, and he doesn't care for it. "I personally don't think fellows like that are funny," he said. "I feel sorry for 'em. And after you've played the worm and turned a few times, what else is there for you to do to make it different? A fellow like that can't have any smart lines because in real life he wouldn't think of 'em. All he can do is listen, and have things happen to him. I'm getting tired of it."

Sweet Sues
McHugh, as I said, was pretty mild about it. He hadn't reached that burning stage of indignation which leads to I'll-be-suing-you-warders. On another stage, behind carefully closed doors, was emoting the studio's latest star, Kay Francis. She was giving her heart to "Return from Limbo," and the bosses, whom she is suing to void her contract because they let Claudette Colbert have "Tovarich," had protected her from the inquisitive and curious.

This is a nice thing about Hollywood. You may fight your legal enemies and have them be solicitors in your behalf—if it happens to them. Kay, like a good little girl, was going to work on schedule. Pending decision on her suit, she was not going to be caught refusing to work. Kay, unlike Bette Davis and Ann Dvorak when they sued, didn't walk first.

Goiter Program Starts in Schools

Distribute Authorization Slips to New London Pupils

New London—The goiter prevention program of Waupaca county was launched in this city yesterday with the distribution of authorization slips to all pupils in the New London schools. The slips are to be returned by students today with the parents consent to the program.

According to Miss Loretta Rice, public health nurse who is directing the project here.

The program consists of giving each school child iodine tablets weekly for the prevention of simple endemic goiter. Children under 10 years of age will take one tablet each week and those over 10 will take two weekly during the school year. The tablets are recommended until the twenty-first year.

The iodine tablets will be supplied free by Waupaca county as the result of an appropriation by the county board. The pills will be given at the school by the teachers in charge.

The program of goiter prevention is a state-wide undertaking sponsored by the Wisconsin Medical society. The plan was projected in the county several years ago but no tablets were distributed since because of lack of appropriation funds.
